HOPE IS SEEN IN FLOOD SITUATION

PEACE PORTENDS DOOM AWAITING POYDRAS

Fruitful Fields And Homes Sacrifice To Great City

NEW ORLEANS, April 28. — A green and fruitful countryside lay hushed in the sun of this April morning, waiting for the doom that has been decreed for it.

A pall of dust, beaten up from the highway in the hasty flight of its people, by their trucks, their trudging feet, the shuffling pace of their herded cattle, has settled over Poydras, where the engineers will break the levee at noon tomorrow and open a course over fertile fields for the pent and raging waters of the Mississippi.

A group of newspapermen climbing to the top of the Poydras levee for a last look at the pleasant land, startled into clumsy flight several buzzards which had been drawn there by the evil premonition of disaster, and that was all.

Poydras and its surrounding country is being sacrificed that the greater New Orleans may be saved and its air today was that of a lonely place, wistfully and inarticulately resigned to a dire fate. Most of the dwellers in the community had gone to New Orleans, where a teeming refugee camp has been established in the International Trade Exposition Building.

Since Tuesday night the Poydras Pike had been a stifling course of heavy dust, kicked up by the exodus of the fugitives. The neat homes are closed and shuttered.

Not all of these homes were deserted placidly. There is about Poydras and its neighborhood a charm and grace of antiquity which shows that many have lived, labored, loved, and died there. A cluster of crumbling brick huts, the former dwelling place of slaves of the great plantation that was the communities beginning stands not far from the spot of willows and smooth-cropped grass on the levee bank where the way is to be blasted for the flood.

And now far away are the red brick ruins of the old Versailles plantation home, which seem hardly less ancient than the water oaks and their festoons of gray moss. Poydras is old.

And it was accordingly not easy to win the agreement of all persons in the settlement to desert their homes to the flood. Some of the most deeply rooted inhabitants in a flare of defiance refused to move. For the most part these have been won over to reason through intercession by influential neighbors.

"There has been some talk of danger of shooting when the engineers go to break the levee," said a prominent New Orleans civic leader. "We are hoping that everything has been worked out, and that with our assurances of ample indemnities, and of every possible means of relief, our friends in Poydras will be reconciled but we are not sure that this is completely so."

An immediate relief fund of $150,000 has been raised among fifty New Orleans banks and business leaders. This matter of indemnity is necessarily unofficial at this stage, and it will be largely defrayed by private purses.

Some of the Poydras irreconcilables are known to be dubious about the situation. One of the interesting points is the levee at Poydras which is being blown to save New Orleans. It was constructed by Poydras people. It is all theirs, and it is a good one. As a matter of fact, it rises ten to twelve feet above the flood level, while the levee top at New Orleans is barely three feet above the rising water. There was a break at Poydras in the great flood of 1922, after which Poydras people had gone methodically about eliminating the danger of another disaster of the sort.

Poydras is a community of numerous churches, some of them quite old, and a fine school. One of the trucks serving the relief work was laden Thursday with desks and another with equipment from the school, which is being transplanted in New Orleans, where the children will be assembled to continue their instructions as far as possible.

One of the Poydras owners who will be injured most severely by the flood is Theodore Grunewald, the former hotel proprietor, who has developed one of the most beautiful estates in these parts at Poydras, with formal gardens, chickens to the number of 70,000 or so, flowers and all else that goes with a beautiful home. Yet Grunewald, looking to the protection of New Orleans as the most essential thing, was one of the most active figures in urging an artificial break at Poydras.

Poydras was named for Julien Poydras, the first poet and philanthropist of the province of Louisiana when it was a possession of France. Julien Poydras born in 1740, was a gallant figure, and wrote the first epic poem in Louisiana literature and founded an orphanage which has been one of the outstanding institutions of Louisiana. The people of New Orleans like to think that Julien Poydras, with his flaming devotion to the young city of his day, would have been with Theodore Grunewald and others who have worked assiduously for the sacrificial devastation of a village that one of the greatest cities in the world might be saved.

COOLIDGE PROMISES HELD VALUELESS

AMERICAN CIRCLES IN CHINA OPPOSED TO PRESENT POLICY

Report MacMurray May Resign—Missions Are Looted

LONDON, April 28.—President Coolidge's speech in New York on Monday regarding the American foreign policy and that towards China in particular has been received with "unconcealed disgust" in American circles in Peking, according to the Daily Telegraph correspondent. This dispatch states that the president's promises of protection for American lives and property are regarded as valueless since no redress has been insisted upon for the looting of the American consulate.

Reports received here have been plain in indicating that American circles in Peking are not entirely in sympathy with the Washington policy and would favor a stronger stand. There have been some intimations that American Minister Mac Murray might find it convenient to offer his resignation if an opportunity to do so arises which will not cause embarrassment to the American government.

The British press is very cautious but indicates that there is a good deal of dissatisfaction in official circles with the attitude the United States has taken relative to the second note of protest regarding the Nanking affair.

Some members of the cabinet are insisting that Great Britain act alone, and there seems to be an attempt to regard the United States as adopting a policy of hindrance.

PARIS, Apr. 28.—If the United States refuses to join the powers in the new note of protest to the Chinese nationalists over the Nanking affair France will refuse likewise, the foreign office announced today.

France is prepared to assume an attitude of watchful waiting it was stated.

SHANGHAI, Apr. 28.—Chiang Kai Shek and his moderate followers are beginning to loom as the real power in nationalist China.

Reports from Hankow indicate that Chiang has administered heavy defeats to the extremist armies in the vicinity of Kiukiang and appears likely to make good his threat to take over Hankow. There are reports that the extremist armies are not offering much resistance. At the same time Chang Tso Lin's armies are marching against Hankow and observers here anticipate an agreement between Chiang and Chang Tso Lin.

Residences of American missionaries at Kiukiang were looted and later were occupied by Chinese troops.

The British concession at Kiukiang was endangered by undisciplined communists, who fell back before the advance of Gen. Chiang's army. The "whites" then speeded up their advance in hope of completing the rout of their foes in the eastern part of the Kiukiang district.

YOUTH KEPT ALIVE BY FRIENDS BETTER PHYSICIANS STATE

Artificial Means Keeps Spark Of Life Burning

ROANOKE, Va., Apr. 28.—Walter L. Boothe, the 18-year-old youth who has been kept alive for nearly five days by artificial respiration, induced by the untiring efforts of his friends, was better today.

"Its amazing, but true," said a physician at Jefferson Hospital where the grim battle is being waged night and day. The tenacity with which the wasted youth clings to life has astounded the staff of physicians.

Steadily, hour after hour for 165 hours, friends of the youth, working in relays, have pumped his arms up and down, up and down, forcing the life-sustaining air into his paralyzed lungs. The pain he suffers is intense, yet he has not complained, and even manages to smile wanly at his relatives and loyal friends.

The doctor says there is no hope, that he is steadily growing weaker and that it is only a matter of time until the system collapses under the strain of artificial breathing. Last night they believed he was going, yet this morning they admitted he was better.

Walter himself is resigned to death.

GOVERNOR DONAHEY MOVES VETO RECORD TO FIFTEEN BILLS

Approves Bill That Regulates Operation Of Home Here

COLUMBUS, O., Apr. 28.—Governor Vic Donahey's vetoes of measures enacted during the present session of the Ohio legislature stood at fifteen today.

The latest measure to receive the governor's disapproval is the bill, by Rep. Jos. G. Ehrlich, Cleveland, authorizing boards of education in Cleveland and Cincinnati to employ their own legal advisers and attorneys.

The governor permitted the Jones Emergency act, empowering boards of education receiving state aid to borrow money in anticipation of state aid to pay teachers' salaries, to become a law without his approving signature.

The governor, it was announced, signed the bill, by Sen. L. T. Marshall, Xenia, restricting admissions to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, Xenia, to residents of Ohio, and placing the institution under the board of trustees, instead of the superintendent.

Declaring the Ehrlich bill, which he vetoed, would create additional expense because of duplication of housing facilities, equipment and law libraries, Donahey voiced the belief that the city solicitor should furnish the school boards with counsel.

TEST IS SUCCESS

Gray's Friend Takes Stand

INSURANCE MAN WHO HELPED MAKE ALIBI RELATES HIS STORY

Taxi Driver Tells Of Taking Gray From Crime Scene

COURTHOUSE, Long Island City, N. Y., April 28. — Haddon Gray, nattily dressed Syracuse, N. Y., insurance man, who helped Henry Judd Gray arrange an "alibi" in Syracuse while the latter was in Queens village on the gory business of slaying Albert Snyder on March 20, last, took the witness stand at the Snyder-Gray trial today and related his connection with the case.

Haddon Gray was an old school chum, but no relative of Henry Judd Gray.

Mrs. Ruth Snyder, co-defendant with Judd Gray, watched the witness closely through narrowed eyes.

Paul Mathis, a taxicab driver, took the witness stand as the first witness today and testified that Gray was his fare from Jamaica, L. I., to New York on that morning.

Previous witnesses had testified that after Gray left the Snyder home he took a bus to Jamaica.

Mathis said Gray, carrying brief case and overcoat, asked him to drive him to New York City, which he did. The fare was $3.50.

The courtroom was packed. Spectators stood three deep along the walls.

Mrs. Snyder was paler than usual when she took her accustomed seat. Gray sat with head bowed, a dejected figure.

Newcombe asked the court to instruct the jury that the exhibits found at the murder scene— the sash weight, picture wire, etc — were introduced against both defendants.

Justice Townsend Scudder said to the jury:

"Gentlemen, consider the exhibits (they lay on the table in front of the jury) for what they are worth."

Mathis was the thirty-eighth witness so far called. The state said it has six more witnesses and then it will rest its case.

Mrs. Snyder will probably take the stand as the first witness for her side in the dual defense, it was indicated from an authoritative source.

Attorney William J. Millard wanted to know if the witness remembered what clothing Gray wore that morning. Mathis said he couldn't, but he could remember Gray's face.

"Why?" Millard wanted to know.

Because, Mathis answered, when Gray gave him a nickel tip it was so unusual he took a good look at him.

BRAZILIAN FLYER OFF OVER ATLANTIC

RIO JANEIRO, April 28.— The Brazilian hydroplane "Jahu," under the command of the Brazilian aviator Ribeiro Barros, took off from Porto Praia, Cape Verde Islands, at 4:12 a. m. today in an attempt to fly across the Atlantic, according to reports from Fernando De Noronha.

The plane is expected to arrive at Fernando at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

"AMERICAN LEGION" CRASHES

ELEVEN INJURED WHEN INDIANA ELECTRIC CARS COLLIDE AT GARY

GARY, Ind., April 28.—Eleven were injured, several seriously, in a head-on collision between two Indiana Harbor Electric Line cars today.

Both cars immediately caught fire and were almost completely destroyed.

A heavy fog was believed responsible for the crash.

Presence of mind of Lawrence Cable, one of the motormen, was believed to have saved many lives. He opened the doors after throwing on the brakes and shouted a warning to the passengers.

THE QUIZ GAME

Have you been bitten with the "question and answer" bug? The quiz game is sweeping the country like the cross-word puzzle rage did a year or two ago.

Everywhere people are puzzling their brains to place some familiar quotation or to remember the name of Helen of Troy's husband.

Greene Countians, being normal Americans, will be swept along with the quiz game sooner or later. For that reason this newspaper is pleased to announce that it is ready to present a brand new "question and answer" game in an entirely original manner.

This new quiz game will not ask you a number of impossible questions unanswerable outside of a university faculty meeting or an encyclopedia publishing house. It will ask you questions that, as daily newspaper readers, you are familiar with and should know. It tests your powers of observation, your diligence in reading the newspapers and your memory. The questions are based on news stories that have appeared in the few days preceding their appearance. The questions will be printed on one page, the answers on another.

A series of them will furnish interesting contests for parties or congenial gatherings. Look for the new feature in THE EVENING GAZETTE and THE MORNING REPUBLICAN.

LEAPS TO DEATH

CLEVELAND, O., April 28.—The body of a man believed to be A. E. Wolk, of Akron, was being held in county morgue here today awaiting instructions from relatives. The man leaped to death from a fifty foot cliff into Lake Erie last night, leaving a note addressed to "John, Mary and Sadie" which read: "Don't worry or go to any expense. Wishing the best of luck for all of you."

TWENTY DROWN

KIEFF, Soviet Russia, April 28. —Twenty persons were drowned when a small steamer sank in the Dneiper River near Kaminsky today.

GIN AND JEALOUSY; POLICE BLAME THEM FOR ACTOR'S DEATH

Wife Of Film Cowboy Held For Killing Tom Kerrick

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—Gin and jealousy. This combination together with a convenient automatic, according to police, resulted in the death of Tom Kerrick, 32, film cowboy. His wife, Sarah, occupied a jail cell today, charged with shooting her husband—the climax of a gay party in Kerrick's Hollywood home.

Four other persons, all motion picture "extras,' 'are held as material witnesses.

The county grand jury will sift the facts in the case when it meets today. So far questioning has produced nothing but a mass of conflicting stories.

Police said all those quizzed were so intoxicated no coherent story of the shooting could be obtained.

Kerrick has been in motion pictures for about three years, playing minor parts, always of the cowboy variety. He appeared in several pictures with Helen Holmes, an actress identified with the "thriller" type of picture. Kerrick rode the range in Arizona for many years and at one time was a deputy sheriff at Florence, Ariz.

POLA PICKS GOWN BUT NOT RITE

PARIS, April 28.—Pola Negri has decided upon the style of her wedding gown but she hasn't decided upon the style of her wedding.

Pola stated today that she and her fiance Prince Mdivani have not yet agreed on what form of a marriage ceremony they shall accept, as there is a difference in their religions.

"I know it would displease mother if I should marry outside of my religion," said Pola. "On the other hand the prince's father would object strenuously if he give up his religion."

Pola has decided that her wedding gown shall be a "robe de style" in keeping with her Louis Sixteen chateau, where the wedding will take place.

ASK BROADCASTING STATIONS TO FAVOR FREE SPEECH RIGHT

Threaten Amendment By Congress To Enforce Principles

WASHINGTON, April 28.—An appeal to broadcasting stations to observe the recognized American principles of free speech is under consideration by the federal radio commission.

Commissioner H. A. Bellows said today that while the federal law gives the commission no power of censorship over programs, broadcasters may be asked to cooperate to assure freedom of speech.

"If the broadcasters do not carry out these principles congress may step in with an amendment to compel their recognition," Bellows said.

"Broadcasting stations under the law are not a public utility yet, despite claims to this effect that have been placed before the commission. Their programs cannot be regulated, except in a degree to say that cannot be done. We are endeavoring to consider the stations as a combination of the theatre and the newspaper."

Because of the claim that speakers discussing controversial subjects have been "cut off" or forced to talk to "dead microphones," and that others have been refused permission to appear at all unless they submitted their talks for censorship of the station management, many complaints have been brought to the commission.

Under existing law the operator of a broadcasting station has the same right to censor the programs presented as has the editor to reject information to be published in his magazine.

The only exception to the right of censorship contained in the radio law provides that all political parties shall have equal rights "on the air."

With the opening of the national campaign next year it was anticipated that the radio would be used widely in presenting the various political issues. Difficulty in enforcing the political equality provisions of the law are anticipated.

CHICAGO JUBILANT AS POLICE EXPRESS TOLERANCE POLICY

Chief Tells Captains To Ignore Hip Flasks In Chi

CHICAGO, April 28.—Chicagoans today were jubilant over what was regarded as the commencement of a tolerant police attitude toward hip flasks and a friendly bottle of beer in the larder, in keeping with the campaign promises of Mayor William Hale Thompson.

Lifting the lid was begun, according to politicians, with the address of Chief of Police Hughes to his fifty captains in which he intimated that "frisking pantries for pints" was of less importance than running crooks out of the city.

"You are not to condone any notorious or flagrant gambling, vice or bootlegging, of course," said Hughes, "but these things should be secondary. If a man wants to have a good time, that's his business, so long as he doesn't violate the law or interfere with the rights of others.

"The policeman's job is to catch thieves and thugs and that is what I want you to concentrate on in managing your districts."

ENGINEERS EXPECT ARTIFICIAL BREAK WILL SOLVE MENACE

Fifty Thousand Work To Strengthen Levee North Of City

NEW ORLEANS, April 28. —Renewed hope that further disaster might be avoided came to hundreds of thousands in Louisiana today as the crest of the Mississippi flood reached Vicksburg, 400 miles above New Orleans.

Army engineers, who are directing upwards of 50,000 men engaged in a heroic struggle to keep the river within threatened levees along its lower reaches, believe that barring heavy rains within the next three days, the last and most critical phases of the devastating flood may pass the city and spend itself through the artificial crevasse to be opened tomorrow at Poydras, ten miles south of here.

The most threatening situation today was at Angola, Louisiana, opposite the mouth of the Red River where the supreme effort of the defenders of New Orleans is being made to save the weakening levees.

A break at Angola would unleash the Mississippi River in unmeasured stretches of Louisiana flats. Twelve thousand men organized in military units are employed in strengthening the levee lines, repairing wave washes and capping low stretches near Angola. Fifty barges are concentrated in the region to carry materials to the threatened sections.

More than 5,000,000 bags of sand already have been placed in position along some twenty-three miles of dyke and millions of feet of lumber have been used in reinforcing walls.

"There is reason to be hopeful," said Major W. H. Holcombe, in charge of levee operations south of Vicksburg. "There is still possibility of breaks in the line above New Orleans where in some spots the levees are not quite so strong as those protecting New Orleans, but every hour that passes brightens the prospect that the weakest point may hold."

The Red River is rising between Shreveport and Alexandria, La., but the army engineers anticipate this swell will reach the Mississipppi eight or ten hours before the crest of the upper valley flood.

State engineers made final preparations today for the blasting of the levee at Poydras, La., ten miles below New Orleans. The crevasse is expected to carry off sufficient water to reduce the level at New Orleans at least thirty inches.

Flood losses throughout the entire Mississippi system were estimated by Secretary Hoover today at approximately $200,000,000.

Two hundred thousand people are homeless or stranded on high ground without food, according to Hoover's latest reports.

Intensive organization for the relief of thousands forced from their homes in Saint Bernard and Plaquemines parishes by the decision to open the Poydras levee were perfected today. Unbroken lines of refugees from the territory sacrificed to the safety of New Orleans still moved into the city, and more than 2,500 had arrived before noon. Special camps have been provided under the direction of the Red Cross and state Adjutant General L. A. Toombs.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., April 28.—Five new death from floods from a break in the Arkansas River near Pendelton, Ark., were reported today.

None of the five bodies have been identified. The bodies of three Negroes and two white men were found near Tillar, Ark., by rescue workers.

GREENVILLE, Miss., April 28. —Armed with orders to "shoot to kill if necessary," national guardsmen here are enforcing strict curfew over this water-soaked city to end looting.

All persons on the streets after 8 o'clock at night are arrested unless they have a pass. These passes are issued by the national guard.

SENTENCE NEGRO ON ATTACK CHARGE

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Philip Jackson, a Negro, was under sentence of death today for criminally attacking Mrs. Daisy Elling, white, in the grounds of the capitol two months ago. The jury recommended the death penalty, which makes it mandatory.

The District of Columbia has a new electric chair, having abandoned the old gallows. Jackson probably will be the first victim.

SAVED FROM FUMES

CLEVELAND, O., April 28.—Awkened by gas fumes at his home early today, Warren Fartianno, 8, although nearly overcome, managed to reach a telephone. Police arrived with pulmotors in time to revive the eight members of the Fartianno family.

FIVE FAMOUS PAINTINGS ARE STOLEN FROM MOSCOW MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS

MOSCOW, April 28.—Soviet police today are trying to trace thieves that stole five world-famous paintings, valued at more than 1,000,000 roubles from the museum of fine arts during the Russian Easter holidays.

While there is no trace of the thieves they are believed to belong to an international ring, acting under the direction of some "educated master mind" abroad, since the pictures taken were the jewels of the collection.

The stolen canvasses are a portrait of Christ by Rembrandt; a Titian called, "This is the Man"; a Vittore Pisano entitled, "Chastisement by Christ", and Carlo Dolche's "John the Baptist."

The Rembrandt canvas was badly mutilated, the figure being cut out from the background. The others had been lifted from their frames with extreme care.

PARIS, April 28.—Former Crown Prince Carol, of Roumania, is recovering from a week's illness that almost developed into pneumonia it was learned today. The Roumanian premier asked the Roumanian delegation to send daily bulletins upon the prince's condition.

HEWITT WILL BE YOUNGEST TO DIE IN CHAIR

COLUMBUS, O., Apr. 28.— If Floyd Hewitt, convicted slayer from Conneaut, O., is executed August 10, as scheduled, for killing little Fred Brown, Jr., 5, he will be the youngest murderer ever to die in the electric chair in Ohio, Warden P. E. Thomas of the state penitentiary declared today.

Several 17-year-old slayers have died in the chair since it was substituted for hanging as the legal method of execution, in April, 1897, the warden said. Hewitt is only a few months past his sixteenth birthday.

Although hangings were performed in the various counties by the county sheriffs prior to the use of the electric chair, and records here are incomplete, Thomas said that he knew of one murderer younger than Hewitt who went to his death on the gallows. The slayer was Otto Lueth, of Cleveland, convicted of murdering Mrs. Maggie Thompson, and was hanged in 1890, when only a few days past sixteen years old.

SUIT DESIGNED TO QUIET TITLE FILED; SALE IS ORDERED

Suit designed to quiet the title on certain property described in the petition, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by J. Oliver Jobe, naming as defendants, John Johnson, Laura B. Northup, Lean Huntington, Charles Johnson, Lulu Illiff, Mary Townsley, William Johnson, Dorothy, Bessie and Ruth Johnson, minors, and Ella Johnson, guardian of the minor defendants.

Plaintiff claims sole ownership of the property, the title being derived from a deed recorded February 26, 1920, executed by George and John Johnson.

According to the petition, through an inadvertance, there was but one witness to the signature and acknowledgment of the grantors, this defect putting a cloud on the title. Defendants have no claim on the property and plaintiff asks that they be barred from interest in the real estate. Miller and Finney are plaintiff's attorneys.

WOMEN'S CLUB, OLDEST IN COUNTRY, CELEBRATES

The Xenia Woman's Club celebrated its sixtieth anniversary Thursday, April 28, with a noon luncheon followed by a literary program.

Mrs. Kinney, president emeritus, acted as hostess and presided on this memorable occasion. Twenty-eight of the thirty active members and ten associate members were present and were seated at two long tables extending the length of two rooms.

During the luncheon, Miss MacCracken offered a toast to Mrs. Kinney in which she paid her a high tribute as the embodiment of the club's highest ideals. She included Miss Allen in her toast, referring to her devotion to the club. Mrs. Kinney responded in an appropriate manner and then proposed a toast to the club bride-elect, Miss Margaret Kelly, presenting her with a corsage bouquet.

The literary program was opened by the reading of letters from former members, by Mrs. H. H. Eavey, after which Mrs. A. S. Frazer read "A History of the Club."

Several distinguished guests, who had visited the club in recent years, were then introduced, each appearing in a curtained frame, while a poem or some quotations were read in their honor by Mrs. William M. Wilson, Miss Hagar and the Misses Flynn. Those revisiting the club were: Helen of Troy, represented by Mrs. Ruthrauf; Dante, by Mrs. J. P. White; Goethe's Marguerite, by Mrs. Spencer Shank; Mary, Queen of Scots, by Mrs. C. S. Frazer; Fanny Burney, by Mrs. Paul Espey; Lafayette by Mrs. Howard Little; Marquise de la Tour du Pin by Mrs. Magruder; Priscilla Alden, by Mrs. C. L. Darlington.

The musical program was then given:

Two Quartets—
(1) "I Know A Lovely Garden" .....Guy d'Hardelot
(2) "Lindy"...Chas. Gilbert Spross
Mrs. Cherry, Mrs. Meredith, Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. James Wilson, III.
(3) "The Crying of Water" .....Campbell-Tipton
(4) Aria from "I' Bravo"..... ..... Saverio Mercadante
Mrs. Lawrence Shields
(5) "It Rained" .....Massenet
(6) "Twilight."
(7) "After a Dream" .... Gabriel Faure
Mrs. John Davidson
(8) "I Send My Love Up to Thee."
(9) "The Year's At The Spring" ..... Protheroe
(10) "Ah, Love But a Day."
Mrs. William J. Cherry

The accompanists were Miss Moorehead and Mrs. Ruthrauff.

Several scenes from "The Rivals" were then presented in costume, an introduction being given by Dr. Bertha Trebein Flynn. The players acquitted themselves well and Sheridan's sparkling comedy was greatly enjoyed. Those taking the parts were:

Mrs. Malaprop—Miss Allen.
Miss Lydia Languish, her niece—Mrs. Patterson.
Lucy, her maid—Miss Moorehead.
Sir Anthony Absolute—Miss Elwell.
Captain Jack Absolute, his son—Mrs. James Wilson III.
Fag, his servant—Miss Mary Little.

Those attending from a distance were: Mrs. William H. Kenyon, New York City; Mrs. Joseph Littell, Indianapolis; Mrs. John C. Munger, Pasadena, Calif.; Mrs. Proudfit, Cambridge, Ohio; Miss Santmyer, New York City.

The rooms were filled with beautiful flowers, yellow being the predominating color. C. K. S.

LEGG-COWAN NUPTIALS SOLEMNIZED ON THURSDAY

With charming simplicity, the marriage of Miss Lucille Legg, daughter of Mrs. Dora M. Legg, W. Main St., and Mr. Carl T. Cowan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Cowan, Home Ave., was solemnized at the Friends Church, the Rev. Russell Burkett, officiating, Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

A large assembly of relatives and friends of the couple witnessed the ceremony. The church altar was filled with palms and potted greenery, combined with snapdragons in various hues. The Anderson Flower Shop effectively decorated the chancel.

Strains of the Lohengrin wedding march played by Miss Mabel Peelle, Wilmington, marked the entrance of the bridal party. Miss Legg and her maid, Miss Helen Peelle, Wilmington, walked down one aisle and Mr. Cowan and his groomsman, Mr. Freeland Jennings, Dayton, the other.

The bride's frock was of navy and poudre blue crepe, simply designed with full sleeves, pleated ruffles and bolero effect. Her hat was also of poudre blue and she carried Madame Butterfly roses and delphinium.

Miss Peelle wore orchid georgette, trimmed in fringe. Her hat was also of orchid shade and she carried Columbia roses.

The four members of the bridal party met at the altar for the single ring ceremony.

Fifty relatives and friends were received at the Legg home, after the church ceremony. Pink sweet peas were used throughout the rooms and this color predominated in the appointments of the luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Cowan left Thursday evening by motor, for a weeks' trip. On their return they will reside in the Adair Apartments, W. Market St., this city. Mr. Cowan is employed as salesman with the Holland Furnace Co., Dayton. His bride is operator at the beauty parlor at the Jobe Brothers Store. She is a graduate of the class of 1923, Wilmington High School and Mr. Cowan graduated the same year from Central High School, Xenia.

Mr. Isadore Hyman has been confined to his home on E. Market St., several days with an attack of quinsy.

Mrs. Lilly Stevenson, of Xenia, and Miss Mattie Williams, Jamestown, are expected to arrive home Friday from Melbourne, Fla., where they spent the winter.

WOMEN OF DISTRICT ATTEND EPISCOPAL MEET

One hundred and fifty women of the Women's Auxiliary, of the Diocese of Southern Ohio, Dayton District, heard a message from far-off Alaska, brought by Deaconess Harriet M. Bedell, of Stephen's Village, near the Arctic Circle, at the district convention at Christ Episcopal Church, this city, Wednesday.

Members of the society from Cincinnati, Dayton, Troy, Piqua, Middletown, Waynesville, London, Chillicothe, Washington C. H., Wilmington, Jamestown, Springfield, and other cities in this part of the state attended interesting sessions in the morning and afternoon.

Miss Bedell's address featured the afternoon session. She is Deaconess of the Episcopal Church, educating the Eskimo children in the Far North, at St. Andrew's Mission School where she is the only white person in the region.

Stephen's Village is wholly a native settlement, located on the border of the Land of the Midnight Sun, in summer it has light through the twenty-four hours of each day, the sun setting at half past eleven and rising again soon after midnight. Though so close to the Arctic Circle, during the brief summer the temperature frequently goes as high as eighty degrees, the snow melts, the ice breaks up and it is then, with navigation along the Yukon open for a brief period, that the deaconess has her short contact with the outside world. Then it is that Bishop Rowe, the missionary bishop of the Episcopal Church pays his annual visit, supplies are carried in, and she learns what has happened during the past year.

Gardens flourish then in this outpost of civilization, potatoes, cauliflower, beets, lettuce and beautiful flowers appear above the ground—the hot sun having melted the earth for a space of three feet below the surface. Mosquitos swarm about also, and netting is necessary about beds at night as in the tropical lands of the far south.

Then summer passes, the days grow shorter until finally a period of darkness arrives and it is dark throughout the twenty-four hours, with the temperature down to sixty-five degrees below zero, and all travel is by dog sled.

It is among these conditions that the Deaconess is carrying on the work that has been intrusted to her. During the long winter she makes frequent trips to the neighboring villages in which the natives have housed themselves until the passing of the severe weather; and on these trips she journeys by sledge, camps at night along the trails wrapped in blankets and buried beneath the snow for warmth. Her story of her adventures reads like a romance of the Arctics.

The district meeting opened at 10:30 with a communion service in charge of the Rev. Mr. Shaffer, of Dayton and Waynesville parishes, assisted by the Rev. Phil Porter, Dayton. A business session followed, with the address of the new district president, Miss Catherine Morrison, Cincinnati, at 11:25. Miss Morrison described the work being done by the auxiliary over the district.

A talk by Mrs. Mark L. Mitchell, Cincinnati, in charge of the supply depot of the district followed. Mrs. Cleveland Benedict, Cincinnati, told of the united thank-offering, made by members of the society and which takes care of 179 missionaries all over the world.

The noonday prayer service was in charge of the Rev. Mr. Fisher, Springfield. Luncheon was served in the parish house, by women of the Lutheran Church.

The afternoon session opened with an officers' conference and roll call. Resolutions were adopted, including one with reference to a collection to aid the work of Deaconess Bedell.

"The Book of Remembrance" in which the names of all deceased members of the diocese who have done some noteworthy work are inscribed, was exhibited at the meeting by Mrs. Judith Braxton Colston, Cincinnati, who has charge of the valuable book.

The session closed with the singing of a hymn at 4 o'clock.

CEDARVILLE CHURCH CHOIR IS APPRECIATED

The choir of First Presbyterian Church, Cedarville, with its leader, Mrs. Mildred Foster, Yellow Springs, and pianist, Miss Alberta Hemphill, Cedarville College student, was honored with a congregational dinner in the church parlors, Wednesday evening. The honored guests of the evening included Mr. George Cresswell, who has served in the choir fifty years and is still faithful to the organization.

Covers were laid for thirty members of the choir, and with the members of the congregation, about eighty-five people were in attendance. The tables were centered with bouquets of purple and white lilacs and narcissus. A tempting two-course dinner was served.

Judge S. C. Wright, Xenia, as chairman of the congregation, presided during the after-dinner program. Impromptu talks were made including utterances of appreciation by the choir members.

After dinner, the assembly adjourned to the church auditorium where the Rev. W. P. Harriman, pastor, presented stereopticon slides of hymns, which were sung by the congregation. Several talks were given and a prayer service held.

Mrs. John Gardner, Cincinnati, enjoyed a short visit this week with Mr. and Mrs. George C. Stokes, E. Church St.

Mrs. Mary M. Meredith, N. King St., returned Monday from California, where she spent the winter months. Mrs. Mary Little Dice remained in the West for a longer visit and Mrs. H. H. Eavey, returned home previously. Miss Sarah B. Hager, the fourth member of the party has been visiting in Chicago, enroute home.

TWO IMPORTANT TALKS GIVEN AT D. A. R. MEETING.

Mrs. H. C. Messenger opened her home on N. King St., Wednesday afternoon to Catherine Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, for one of the most delightful meetings of the chapter's year.

Mrs. William Magee Wilson's presence, after her trip abroad, brought great pleasure to the members. Mrs. Wilson told in her interesting manner of the Limitation of Arms Conference at Geneva, which she attended. She described the representatives attending from the largest of the twenty-seven or more countries, and gave a clear insight into the international session.

Mrs. A. C. Messenger, state chairman of national defense, gave a most forceful exposition of the dangers of socialistic propaganda and named many of its leaders who have in the past been considered leading American citizens, and who are now seeking to destroy the foundations of the government.

Speaking of James Adams' demand that the United States disarm as an example to other nations. Mrs. Messenger asked why Russia, with the largest standing army in the world, did not first disarm as an example to other countries. "Without order there is no liberty. There must be preparedness to keep order," Mrs. Messenger said. She declared that the Daughters could be counted on in any emergency and that a great deal of help was expected of the organization to combat the propaganda being spread.

A vote of thanks was extended Mrs. Messenger for her splendid address by the society. Mrs. Malone, a guest from Jonathan Dayton Chapter, told of the work of that chapter against socialistic propaganda.

A general subscription to the Mississippi Flood relief fund was voted by the members. Refreshments were served during the social hour. Mrs. Messenger had the assistance of Mrs. A. C. Messenger, Mrs. C. R. Hinkle and Mrs. R. O. Wead.

FIRST U. P. SOCIETY MEETS WEDNESDAY.

The bright, beautiful afternoon of Wednesday had the effect of attracting a large number of members of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First U. P. Church, to the home of Mrs. J. P. White, S. Detroit St.

Mrs. E. C. Moorman presided and requested that all engage in silent prayer for the Mississippi Valley flood sufferers and for others in recent calamities. Mrs. Edwin Galloway closed the period with prayer.

The program of the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. J. P. White, and was taken from the study book, "Moslem Women." She first exhibited a well-executed map of the country where Mohammedanism prevails and presented different phases of the subject. Those engaged in the latter exercises were Mrs. Magruder, Mrs. E. C. Carruthers, Mrs. M. A. Hagler, Mrs. Mary Dean and Miss Mary Turner.

An interesting feature of the exercises was a dialogue, by Mrs. J. P. White, representing a missionary and Mrs. W. J. Cherry, a young Moslem woman. The argument closed with the courteous young woman under conviction but not conversion, yet promising to study the subject further.

A devotional period followed, conducted by Miss Mary Turner. Responses to roll call were made with items taken from the study book and prepared by Mrs. J. F. Hutchison. After a short business session, the meeting adjourned, repeating the Mizpah prayer, Genesis 31-49.

Opera Beckons Kansas Girl, Namesake of Famous Melba

Eighteen years ago the baby girl born to the Alter family of Wichita, Kan., was named Melba. Today she's a singer on the New York stage, and a career rivaling that of the original Melba seems possible.

By ELMER CLARK,
International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK.—You've all heard of Montmorency Archibald Smith, who turned out to be a teamster?

Well, this is the same kind of a story with a different slant.

When a girl was born to the Alter family, in Wichita, Kansas, eighteen years ago, she was christened Melba.

Today she is a singer in a New York revue and an opera career promises to become a reality.

Learned men scoff at the idea of a name influencing the abilities of the person who bears it. Nevertheless, while still in high school in Wichita Miss Alter competed in the Kansas State Singing Contest, the Mid-West Contest and the South-Western Singing Contest, and won first prize in all three!

She continued her musical education in New York, adding dancing, Italian, French and German to her studies. At a recent party she was honored with an invitation to sing a duet with Beniamino Gigli, opera tenor. Duet over, Gigli said:

"She sings with the voice of an European and the charm of an American. Her future is worth of attention."

And so the little girl may fulfill the desires of her mother, who, having once heard the Australian songbird sing, named her daughter after her and prayed that the baby might some day sing like her ideal.

AGED NUN PERFORMS DUTIES OF CONVENT FROM INVALID'S BED

COLUMBUS, O., April 28.—An eighty-nine-year-old nun is carrying out the duties of superior of the Convent of the Good Shepherd here from her sick bed. She is Mother Mary St. Agnes, confined to her bed for the last two years.

The Mother Superior has been ill for the last five years—but illness has not stopped her from pushing forward in the work of trying to put women and girls on the right path—has not weakened her will and courage to carry on until the end.

From a bed in a small, undecorated room, save for flowers and bare-walled but for a crucifix, she signs checks, looks after correspondence and all executive work brought before her as she did ten years ago when she first took the desk as head of the convent.

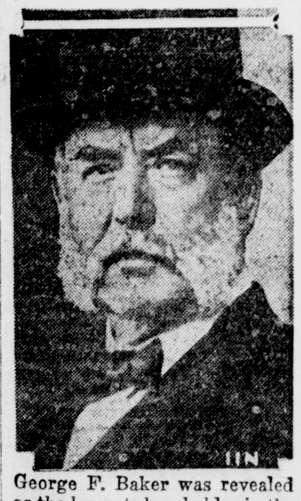

She tells rather shyly of how she made the swaddling clothes for a baby boy who later became president of the United States and chief justice of the United States—William Howard Taft.

When the convent was established more than ten years ago Mother Mary St. Agnes, with five sisters, did needlework in order to keep up the expenses of the convent. It was thus that she became an expert needlewoman and made clothes for the president to be.

Mother Mary St. Agnes is one of the nationally recognized figures in the Catholic sisterhoods of the United States. In her early years she came to the United States from Germany and settled with her parents at Louisville, Ky. She entered a convent in 1856.

She helped found the convent of Good Shepherd at Louisville and Cincinnati.

From Jas. Edwards, Montgomery, Ala., comes this letter which contains a valuable suggestion: "I feel like a new man since taking Foley's Honey and Tar. I can now sleep all night, soreness in chest and the bad cough entirely gone. My whole family use it—for coughs, colds and croup, and it always helps." Stops tickling throat, nervous hacking cough, puts a healing, soothing coating on an inflamed throat. Sold and recommended everywhere. Ask for it. —Adv.

An Every-day Story

Mrs. A. J. Crabtree

Cove, Ohio.—"In February, two years ago, I took down with the 'flu,' had pneumonia in my right lung. In March a baby girl came. I was in an awful condition, was losing flesh all the time. I weighed only 107 pounds; my average weight was 156. I started taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and the 'Pellets' in August and after I had taken two bottles I began to feel better and continued to improve. Now I weigh 158. Dr. Pierce's medicine if given a thorough trial, will do wonders." —Mrs. A. J. Crabtree, R. F. D. No. 1, Box 24.

LAUNCH DRIVE ON AUTO OFFENDERS

War on motorists who are habitually violating the city traffic ordinance is being launched by Mayor John W. Prugh and Police Chief M. E. Graham to curb mounting violations.

Officers have been instructed to arrest all offending motorists, and fines will follow.

Mayor Prugh declares drivers are continually disregarding the speeding laws, traffic signals and streets designated as stop streets. Many violations of the law requiring that autos be equipped with correct licenses and both tail and headlights are also being noted.

Two more speeders, arrested by Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, Wednesday, were each fined $5 by Mayor Prugh. They were: Robert Harfert and H. C. Cramer.

DR. VANDEMAN WILL REPRESENT COUNTY AT MEDICAL MEET

Dr. A. N. Vandeman, Spring Valley, is the official delegate from the Greene County Medical Society to the eighty-first annual meeting of the Ohio State Medical Association, at the Neil House, Columbus, May 10, 11 and 12.

Other Greene County physicians will attend the sessions. Dr. B. R. McClellan, former president of the state association, will report for the committee in Medical Education and Hospitals.

Over 100 Ohio physicians and eight out-of-state physicians are to take part in the scientific assembly, where the latest advances in scientific medicine for the care of disease, alleviation of suffering and protection of public health are to be discussed. This assembly is divided into six general sections — medicine; surgery; eye, ear, nose and throat; obstetrics and pediatrics; nervous and mental diseases; and public health and industrial medicine.

In addition to the scientific program, there will be business meetings of the House of Delegates, the general sessions, election of officers, seventh annual golf tournament, clinics, fraternity and college reunions and numerous other social activities.

Dr. L. G. Bowers, Dayton, retires as president of the Association at this meeting. Dr. L. L. Bigelow, Columbus, president-elect, succeeds Dr. Bowers. Dr. Bigelow's successor will be elected at the meeting.

OPERA IN ESPERANTO

At a recital in New York the other evening, Clyde Burrows, baritone, sang Gretchaninoff's "The Steppe" in Esperanto. He sang other songs in Russian, German, Latin and English, but the Eperanto number is desirving of special attention.

Here, perhaps, is a solution for the problem of the language of operas. Those Americans who feel that operas ought to be sung in this country in an understandable language and those who feel that English is entirely unsuited to that purpose might meet on the common ground of Esperanto. Of course that would require learning Esperanto, which many of us so far have neglected to do. Yet that would be considerably easier than learning all the languages in which operas are ever sung, which seems to be the only other alternative if one must know what all the singing is about.

"THE SOUL OF WIT"

The world is in a hurry: please be brief.

Poor terminal facilities for authors and speakers often nullify all their excellent wisdom. A man may possess all kinds of useful knowledge, but fail in "discerning when to have done."

Brevity is the touchstone of success in any field. You may offend your customer, your reader or your hearer in one respect and please him in another. But if you tire him with your tediousness, you lose him altogether.

The newspaper leads the style today in pith and cogency and has educated the public to the expectation of receiving much in little. The well-executed cartoon will impart a whole philosophy of life at a glance, or provide silent comment on current events worth a column of words.

Brevity is the soul of wit. Yet they who have wit, or think they have, are in special danger of saying too much. Some one has said: "It is better to say nothing and be thought a fool than to open the mouth and dispel all doubt."

Woman, as Warden, Brings "Mother-Touch" to Prison

Mrs. G. A. Waters, in charge of the Granite Reformatory at Granite, Okla., is the only woman warden in the United States. She believes that her wards need mothering more than anything else, and is mingling affection with prison discipline.

GRANITE, Okla. (I.I.N Special)—The only warden of her sex in the United States has brought a woman's touch inside the walls of Granite Reformatory.

The woman is Mrs. G. A. Waters, who succeeded her late husband in her present post.

When she took over the reformatory she discovered that eighty-five per cent of her charges came from broken homes. In light of the fact she saw her duty differently than most wardens see theirs.

She turned what was then a "jail house" into what is now a "prison home." Kindness is mingled with discipline and the Golden Rule has replaced the iron hand.

"But I do not let my sentiment interfere with my judgment," says Mrs. Waters. "I enforce a rigid dicipline, but it is based on one theory. It is this: when the wrong-doer sees his fault and acknowledges the justice of the punishment, he is punished."

Here is how Mrs. Waters brought about her "prison home" idea:

She organized athletic and dancing exhibitions.

She organized a library for her "boys" and gave them greater freedom in reading.

She organized quartets and an orchestra. Sunday afternoon "sings" were instituted.

She bettered the recreational equipment. The ten acres within the prison now have a baseball diamond, a football field, volley ball and horseshoe pitching courts.

Her greatest achievement is less tangible. That is the infiltration of her own personality into the prison system. She has a kind word for every boy she meets. She leads them in singing at church services. She keeps her evenings open so that her wards can bring their complaints to her. She receives them alone—without the usual guard. She talks to them as a friend, not as a jailer. Some have heard their first words of motherly counsel for years from her lips.

One boy, as he was led away after a talk with her, asked his guard:

"Say, when will she let me talk to her again?"

THE FIRST TOOTH

And is this tooth your very own?
And have you done a thing so clever?
And are you then so nearly grown?
Well, did you ever, did you ever!

Does Mother give you all the credit,
And tell the news, and 'phone, and spread it?
Oh—you have known it quite a while!
And is that why you crow and smile?

No joke like this was known before!
With folks exclaiming from the floor,
And making such a great to-do,
I think I'd feel like laughing, too!

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C KELLY

WHEN PLEASING YOURSELF PLEASE OTHERS

A woman novelist a year or so ago decided that she had enough money to treat herself to the luxury of writing something to please herself.

Tired of preparing novels to meet the taste of the public, she was willing to sacrifice a few months or a year of her time with no hope of much money return from her work.

But the novel which she wrote to suit herself, was not only declared by critics to be the best thing she had done, but had a much larger sale than anything she had written before.

Many other writers have had similar experiences. H. G. Wells once told me that he wrote his Outline of History solely because he felt that it would be a contribution which would give him personal satisfaction. He was astonished when the book brought him a fortune.

I imagine that nearly every great piece of literature has been done more because the author couldn't resist writing it than because he thought the public would like it.

Probably what is true of writing is equally true of conversation. You may fit your talk to the company you're in; but unless you yourself are interested, you are sure to be dull company. Otherwise you are not natural. In other words, you are not being yourself. Talk that springs from true convictions is interesting because an honest piece of goods. That which comes from a mere feeling that one should say the proper thing is of poor quality because spurious. The reason so many society folk are stupid company is because their conversation is artificial. They have no genuine feeling about what they are saying.

I remember the one time I ever talked with Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth. Not three minutes were necessary to learn the secret of the charm of her conversation.

This was at a small social gathering. Several women were standing about uttering inane comments and bits of small talk that didn't mean anything, and didn't interest anybody. But what do you suppose Mrs. Longworth and I talked about? Mainly about the difficulty of learning to stand on ones' head! That was a subject that happened to interest her at the moment and therefore it was what she started to talk about.

Because she was being natural rather than artificial, she made everybody about her feel comfortable. Everybody likes her because she is always herself.

There you have the secret of being interesting.

Be yourself!

The Theatre

Earl Williams, pioneer of the film stars, died at his home in Los Angeles, Monday. He was stricken with bronchial pneumonia last week. At 11:30 a. m., Monday, he suffered a sudden relapse and sank into a coma which ended in his death a few hours later.

Williams began his screen career a score of years ago with the old Vitagraph company and for years was an idol of the screen. He was born in Sacramento, Calif.

Scores of expensive automobiles lined the streets near his home as the elite of pictureдom tendered their sympathies to the widow, formerly Miss Florine Walz. Many of the celebrities came in movie makeup, direct from the studios where they were working. In addition to his widow and three-year-old daughter, Joan Constant, Constance Talmadge, and Irving Thalberg, director were at the bedside when death came.

• • •

The history of Williams' rise in the motion picture world is almost a history of the motion picture industry itself. After a short stage career, begun with a stock company in 1901, in New Orleans, and in which he toured the country with Henry Dixey, Mary Mannering, Helen Ware, George Beban, and other oldtime favorites, Williams entered the screen work with the old Vitagraph company. He played serials at first and rose to almost instant popularity as the dashing, romantic and handsome hero. He was one of the real stars of the early day pictures.

A sensational court trial in which the beautiful Roma Raymond received a large judgment against Williams for breach of promise, probably stopped the actor from becoming the most noted of all motion picture actors. He continued in the pictures after the trial, but the nature of the testimony introduced by Miss Raymond hurt his box office popularity. He was playing second leads at the time of his last illness.

How to Achieve Beauty

EYE AREA SHOULD BE TREATED

The eye area, which includes eyelids, the flesh at the side of the eyes where the crowsfeet so often become apparent, and the soft half moons just below the eyes, is the most delicate and important part of your beauty, and should receive a generous portion of the care you bestow upon your face.

To avoid and correct crowsfeet, and also to keep the fine skin of the eyelids and the half-moons under the eyes in good condition, the daily use of a generous application of your anti-wrinkle cream is very important. In working your cream in around your eyes always begin at the inner corner of the eyelid with a light, gentle, rotary motion over the eyelid, then work out toward the temple and down under the eye toward the nose. Never work in the opposite direction.

Hollows and circles under the eyes are usually the result of poor circulation of the blood and these can be helped greatly and even eliminated if you will be faithful in your efforts to stir circulation at this point by applying soothing compresses to the eyes, which I spoke about in yesterday's article. Astringent pads placed beneath the eyes and the consistent practice of the eye exercises which I spoke about earlier in the week, are also of prime importance.

Every woman should possess, in addition, an eye cup, special feeding cream for the eye area, and an astringent for under the eyes to keep the skin well toned and fed.

A more elaborate eye treatment given occasionally by a beauty specialist is very refreshing, and if you live where you can take advantage of this, by all means do so, say once a month, if possible. As in addition to the soothing lotions, creams and astringents which you can apply yourself, the beauty specialist applies an electrode filled with violet ray, which is most soothing and stimulating. The area surrounding the eyes is also cupped by electricity to stir up the circulation. After a treatment of this sort your eyes will be brightened and strengthened to a really remarkable degree.

"Religion has the fight of its life just ahead. Make no mistake about that, and the fight is not between the modernist and the fundamentalist. That is merely a rear-guard action. Mrs. Brown: "That's easy! Let me tell you a favorite dish that can be readily put together, and is a whole meal in itself:"

VEGETABLES BAKED WITH LIVER

Two pounds beef liver, three slices bacon, one large onion, sliced, twelve small potatoes, one tablespoon drippings, one-fourth cup flour, one cup stewed tomatoes, two cups celery, diced, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-half cup hot water.

Add the onions and the celery to the hot drippings. Cook slightly in a pan that has a tight cover. Sprinkle the liver with flour and lay in the pan. Arrange the bacon over the top, add the hot water and the salt, and bake, covered, in a 450 degree F. oven for one-half hour.

Next put in potatoes, pared and halved. Cover and bake until potatoes are done; remove lid and brown the bacon. Dish the meat and vegetables, add to the liquid in the pan the rest of the flour, stir until smooth and add the tomatoes. Season and serve the sauce in a separate dish.

Keeping HEALTHY by Dr. A. F. Currier

HEMOPHILIA

H. G.: I am a "bleeder" and have been since my tenth birthday, though much better than formerly, and if I cut myself now the bleeding is not excessive nor persistent.

My gums also are spongy and bleed, and I would like to go to a dentist and be treated for pyorrhea. What would you advise me to do?

Hemophilia is not such a rare disease. I have seen quite a number of cases in the course of my medical life, and they are always a source of great trouble and anxiety. The disease is one which affects the composition of the blood itself. It means that the blood is deficient in fibrin, which is a substance which is inactive while the blood is circulating in the blood vessels, but active when it escapes from these vessels to the external world or to one of the cavities of the body.

It is through the energy of fibrin that escaped blood coagulates or clots, and a clot sealing the opening in a ruptured blood vessel is nature's measure for arresting the bleeding.

It is a principle that must always be remembered—that blood is a vital substance. Loss of a sufficient quantity of it must inevitably mean loss of life, and Nature's plan is to conserve it to the greatest possible extent by means of fibrin and the clot which it produces.

One who has hemophilia has no such safeguard, or has it only to a slight degree.

When bleeding takes place in such a person it continues indefinitely, possibly until death has occurred and attempts to stop it are often disappointing and futile.

People are born with it and it is very difficult or impossible to get rid of.

It is more common in women and girls than in men and boys, and it may be acquired by habits and occupations which conduce to the thinning of the blood. Sometimes there are families which are predisposed to this disease, and it continues to recur in their members generation after generation.

Infants frequently suffer with it, even the newly-born, and may bleed to exhaustion from the nose, mouth or rectum, or into the tissues and cavities of the body.

Children may show their predisposition to this disease by bleeding profusely after an attack of scarlet fever or chickenpox, after vaccination, the extraction of a tooth, or a pinch or scratch.

Hemorrhage in bleeders may be internal or external, and is particularly prone to affect the mucous membranes, occurring often without any justifiable cause.

It may also occur in the joints and cavities of the body or into the bowel, the bladder or the brain. It may not occur until after a surgical operation; in fact, the victim may be unaware that he has such a trouble, and it may be discovered only as the surgeon finds the difficulty of checking it almost insuperable.

It is revealed in many cases for the first time at the end of childbirth, when it may come in an appalling volume, which not infrequently ends life in a very few minutes.

People sometimes recover from these hemorrhages quickly, and this is especially the case with women or they may remain permanently anemic. One who is aware that he has such a weakness should always be cautious about exposing himself to blows, bruises or even violent exercise.

It is not well for bleeders to marry if they are aware of their weakness, for they may transmit it to their children, if they should have them.

Preparations of lime have been in vogue in recent years, in the treatment of bleeding sickness. Some have claimed good results from them, others have observed no beneficial results.

Substances which are in common use for the arrest of bleeding are ergot, adrenalin, thyroid extract, cotton root and various preparations of iron.

It is said that the most effective substance is blood serum from the human being, the horse or the rabbit.

The simplest way to stop bleeding when it is at the surface of the body is by pressure—pressure of the finger or any convenient compressing instrument.

The trouble usually is that people are so excited when they see blood flowing that they lose self-control and do not apply pressure where it will have the best mechanical advantage.

Ask Dr. Currier that medical question that has been puzzling you. Confine your letter to fifty words and send stamped, addressed envelope for reply. He cannot, of course, make individual diagnoses, and he reserves the right to decide as to the propriety of queries.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, April 28.—Those who doubt the softening influence of modern civilization have but to step over to the old marketing district on Third avenue and interview Otto Schmidt who, as the dramatic editor of a sidewalk horseradish stand, has devoted twenty-five years of his life to the outdoor retailing of this pungent and racy root.

Full of the misery of memory Otto sighs for the good old days when strong men of the metropolis could take half a teaspoonful of the emphatic condiment without shedding a single tear. A dose of that sort today, he tells you, would drive the average man into hysterics.

"As you see," says Otto," I sell my horseradish in bottles. I have to do the grating myself because the modern housewife objects to the labor. It was my wife who gave me the idea. She used to grate her own horseradish. One day she told me that unless I brought it to her prepared I'd have to worry along with catsup. I figured that if my own wife felt that way about it, a lot of other women certainly must share her idea. Business has tripled since I switched to the bottle trade; but I belong back in the days of ungrated roots, and I'll never get used to the soft, bottled horseradish ideas of this generation."

BUCKEYE LEAGUE IN SECOND WEEK; LOOP LEADERS MEET HERE

Interesting contests are in prospect when the Buckeye League opens its second week Sunday afternoon with games scheduled at Xenia, Harshmanville and Beavertown.

Xenia Reserves, with one league victory recorded, meet a worthy opponent in Harshmanville at Washington Park. These two clubs have always engaged in close games in meetings in the past.

Harshman defeated the Dayton police last Sunday in easy fashion while the Reserves were breezing along to a 6 to 1 victory over Osborn.

Beavertown Reds will encounter the Osborn Miami Cements at Beavertown. Both teams are about evenly matched.

Bellbrook and the Dayton Police will clash on the Harshmanville diamond.

All league games will begin at 3 o'clock.

CENTRAL GOLFERS PRACTICE FOR TEAM

Students of Central High School, aspiring to berths on the golf team being formed, enjoyed their first practice round on the Community Club course in Dayton Tuesday afternoon. The student golfers were taken to Dayton by Coach Victor Kolb.

The long and difficult outside course was played but remarkably good scores were turned in, considering the fact it was the first practice of the season.

Present indications are that the high school golf team will be composed of Collins Lorimer, Charles Karch, Abe Rakoff and Leighou Little, with William Clemans and Max Marshall in reserve.

Offers for inter-city matches have been received from Troy and Piqua High Schools, but cannot be accepted unless arrangements can be made to stage the matches on the Troy and Piqua links or on a neutral course.

Golf is the newest sport at Central High and is gradually gaining in popularity.

BRUCE LEVECK TIES FOR SECOND HONORS

B. J. Leveck, Jamestown, carried off major honors among the Greene County marksmen participating in the Central Ohio trapshoot at the Vandalia traps near Dayton Wednesday afternoon.

In the 100-target competition, five shooters from Greene County recored good scores. J. Martin Weimer, Cedarville, broke ninety-one from the eighteen-yard mark; Fred Irvine, Cedarville, eighty-eight; Dick Dennison, Yellow Springs, eighty-five; G. C. Irvine, Cedarville, eighty-five, and W. A. Miller, Sr., Xenia, seventy-seven.

In the sixteen-yard program. Leveck shot ninety-five; Martin Weimer, eighty-seven, and Dan O'Connell, Cedarville, eighty-five.

MAGNATE DIES

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 28.—Otto Borchert, owner of the Milwaukee American Association baseball club, is dead today at the age of fifty-three. HOW TO PLAY BASEBALL
"Play The Batters"
AS TOLD BY STARS OF THE GAME

By FRANK FRISCH

Second Baseman and Captain of World's Champions, St. Louis Cardinals.

Second base in my opinion, with the exception of shortstop, is the most difficult position on the infield to play. I say difficult because of the number of plays with which a second baseman must acquaint himself.

In order to know how to play the second sack the second baseman should know how to make the double play. Second base is known as the keystone sack from which position the majority of double plays are made. For example:

With a runner on first base, the batter hits the ball to either the third baseman or shortstop. The second baseman should run over to cover second base as quickly as possible, so as not to take the throw from either the third baseman or shortstop on the run, enabling him to make a sure catch. The second baseman should always make sure of his play at second base, FIRST.

Then when the putout is made at second base, the second baseman should keep his right foot on the base to steady himself, and then throw to first base, completing the double play. Keeping his right foot on base gives the second baseman more speed and accuracy in his throw to first base.

The most important thing a second baseman should know is how to play the different batters. For instance: With a left-handed batter at the plate, pitcher throws either a curve or slow ball. The second baseman should be on the move toward first base as soon as the pitcher delivers the ball. When the fast ball is pitched the second baseman should play his natural position.

When a low or curve ball is pitched to a right-handed hitter, the second baseman should move toward second base, and, if a fast ball is thrown, move a little toward right field.

Another important thing for the second baseman to study is the fast and slow men. This enables him to know whether to hurry a play or to take his time. When the second baseman knows a fast man is up he should play in a little on the diamond. On fly balls hit over the infield, out toward right or center field, the second baseman should run out as fast as possible with his back to the diamond and when directly under the ball turn and face the diamond, making his catch sure. When almost certain he can take any fly balls he should yell. It is very important for the second baseman to call for any safe fly ball.

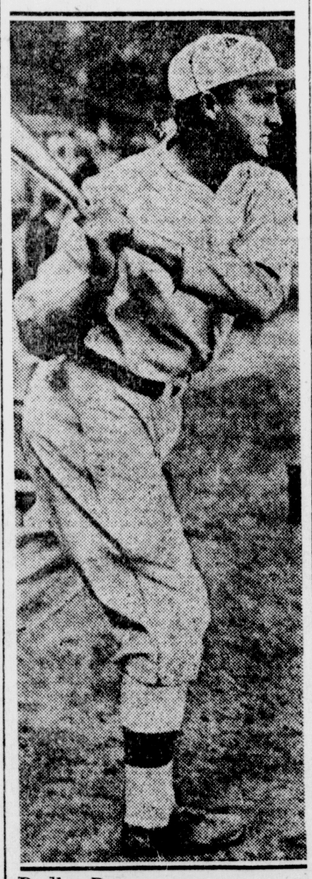

NIECE OF GREENE COUNTIAN KILLED

Mrs. Minnie L. Davis, Burlington Pike, has received word of the death of her niece, Miss Helen Lampe, who was killed Easter Sunday, while on an outing in the mountains near Los Angeles, Cal., when the car in which she was an occupant fell over a cliff.

Miss Lampe and companions were returning from a week's outing in the mountains, when the axle of the auto was broken in an accident and it fell over a cliff when the driver lost control. The other girl in the car was killed and the driver seriously hurt.

Miss Lampe has often visited here and has a number of relatives in this vicinity. She was the daughter of Fred Lampe, formerly of Greenville, O.

PAIR ARRESTED AFTER AUTO TURNS OVER ON DAYTON PIKE

Horace Smith, 25, and William Fenner, 25, both of Dayton, returning home from a visit to Antioch College, had a thrilling escape from serious injury when their coach left the Dayton Pike and turned over several times at the top of Lucas Hill at 1 o'clock Thursday morning.

The machine crashed into two posts and was wrecked, its occupants receiving slight cuts and bruises. The car, owned and driven by Smith, was going toward Dayton.

Patrolmen Ed Craig and Charles Thompson, investigating the accident, placed the pair under arrest, and Smith was fined $15 and costs by Mayor John W. Prugh Thursday morning on a charge of reckless driving. He pleaded guilty. No charge was placed against Fenner. Both were held overnight at Police Headquarters.

The auto is thought to have upset when the driver, unfamiliar with the road, attempted to negotiate the sharp curve at a high rate of speed.

Hailing a passing car, the Dayton men were driven to Xenia. Returning to the scene of the accident with a wrecking car of of Swigart Bros. garage to tow the damaged machine into Xenia for repairs, the pair found the officers waiting for them.

DENIES REPORT OF ALIMONY PAYMENT

NEW YORK, Apr. 28.—Col. Edward C. Carrington, who was recently divorced from his wife in Chicago, denied today that he had settled $100,000 upon Mrs. Carrington as reported at the time of the action.

"The truth of the matter is that Mrs. Carrington waived and refused all alimony and all rights of dower and all claims upon my property. She realized no cash from the settlement. She has told friends of mine that shortly she will marry my brother, Campbell Carrington," he said.

GREENE COUNTY'S QUOTA FOR FLOOD FUND NEARLY REACHED

Greene County's quota of the $5,000,000 fund being raised for the relef of flood sufferers in the Mississippi River Valley was almost totally subscribed Thursday, officials said.

V. L. Faires, treasurer of Greene County Chapter, American Red Cross, in charge of the campaign, has sent $1,000 to headquarters of the organization in Washington, D. C. With Xenia City still lacking its full uota, the fund has already reached practically the $1,575 goal set at the beginning of the campaign.

Cedarville, Jefferson and Miami Twps., have reached their goals.

Wilson W. Galloway, Red Cross chairman, made public an open letter to clubs, lodges, business houses and citizens of Xenia, Thursday, appealing for generous support for the fund. The letter follows:

"Xenia, Ohio.
"April 28, 1927.

"You are aware through the newspapers, etc., of the call of President Coolidge for funds to be given immediately through the American Red Cross for the aid of the Mississippi flood sufferers. Greene County Chapter is at work endeavoring to raise this money.

"The county quota is approximately $1,600, which is quite low considering the ability of our people financially. It has been the hope of our Chapter executives that a solicitation will be unnecessary in that the need is sufficient to cause each one to wish to have a part by contribution in alleviating the suffering and minimizing the loss of life. For this reason, we have not called upon individuals nor business houses by solicitation.

"We are taking this occasion, however, to bring the matter to your attention definitely, and would like to request that you take action promptly upon receipt of this communication by making a contribution to this fund. May we not hope that you will be most liberal in your support of this need? You understand, of course, that the local Chapter benefits in no way by this contribution. If Xenia, through its citizens and organizations, will do its part as faithfully and promptly as the outlying districts of the county our goal will be reached by Saturday night.

"Please send your checks today to the chapter treasurer, Vern L. Faires, 9 W. Main St., Xenia, Ohio.

"Very truly yours,
"Wilson W. Galloway,
"Chairman."

WILLIAM LEE EKIN, FORMER XENIAN, IS CLAIMED SUDDENLY

William Lee Ekin, 48, former Xenian and prominent official of the Pennsylvania Railroad, died from a sudden attack of heart trouble in his offices in Chicago, Thursday morning at 10:15 o'clock, brief word to relatives announced.

Mr. Ekin was chief engineer of maintenance of way for the western region of the Pennsylvania Company, with offices in Chicago. He had been located in that city a little more than a year.

Before that time he was located in Harrisburg, Pa., four years, as superintendent of the Philadelphia division of the Pennsylvania lines. Mr. Ekin was connected with the company as superintendent of various branches for the last fourteen years. He became connected with the Pennsylvania company in 1900 after he finished school.

Before being located at Harrisburg, he was superintendent of the Pittsburgh division, with headquarters at Pittsburgh. Previous to that time he was in Logansport, Ind., as superintendent of that division and held superintendent positions at Decatur, Ill., Terre Haute and Logansport, Ind.

Mr. Ekin left Xenia about twenty-five years ago. He was born and reared in this city, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ekin. His marriage to Miss Janet Allison of this city, took place November 4, 1908. They had no children and besides his widow, two brothers, Allison Landaker, Chicago, Ill., Lawrence Landaker, this city and one sister, Mrs. John G. Baldner, also of this city, survive.

Mr. Ekin attended the Xenia public schools, Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, and Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

LEGATION DAMAGED BY FIRE THURSDAY

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Fire this morning gutted the first floor of the Lithuanian legation at 2622 Sixteenth St.

The fact that the minister, M. Kazys Bizauskas, arose at 4:30 a. m., probably saved his life and prevented more extensive damage. The minister was planning to leave at 5 a. m., on a motor trip to Massachusetts and discovered the fire on arising.

Legislature's Clerk

MISS LOUISE SNOW, WHO CLAIMS TO BE ONLY WOMAN LEGISLATIVE CLERK IN THE UNITED STATES.

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

AUSTIN, Texas, Apr. 28.—Texan legislators, meeting for a call session, perceive a spot of brightness in the dull sky of legislative business, in the presence at her desk as chief clerk of the house of representatives, of pretty little Miss Louise Snow, first woman in Texas, if not in the United States, to hold this important post in a state legislature.

Miss Snow is eighteen years old and a co-ed student at the University of Texas. She was elected to the office which she now holds during the closing days of the last session to fill the unexpired term of her predecesor and, like Mrs. Ferguson, former governor of the largest state in the union, sets a new precedent for Texan women engaged in politics. She is believed to be the only woman in the country who holds such a position.

The legislative halls of Texas have, in the past few years, seen many hectic scenes. Women are playing a larger part in state lawmaking there than ever before and the fact that a woman has been chosen for an important post in the lower house is viewed as being especially significant.

PRESIDENT'S SON KEEPS SADDLE SEAT BETTER THAN WALES

WASHINGTON, Apr. 28.—Horseback riding seemingly has an uncontrollable appeal to youth "of the blood." Edward Albert, much sighed-over Prince of Wales, is known to the four corners of the earth for his exploits in horsemanship, and now America's "crown prince," John Coolidge, has turned to the sport for his principal recreation.

John holds his mount much better than the son of the House of Windsor, bu it must be said in fairness to the Prince that young Coolidge does not undertake the hazardous steeple chasing which makes the tumbles of the British heir apparent almost weekly front-page copy.

The son of the President, while in Washington, is a familiar sight to those who patronize the public golf links around which the Potomac Park bridle path runs. Almost every morning he canters through the park accompanied by Lieutenant Joe Mathison, superintendent of the White House stables, or Jim Haley or Russell Wood, secret service operatives.

John's other favorite forms of recreation are tennis and swimming although since his brother Calvin died he has not engaged in them so much.

In college, young Coolidge has not gone out for athletics. He had brief hopes of making the college boxing team but a decisive three-round defeat and much accompanying publicity cooled that ardor.

ADVANCE TIME

Jail Yawns

Mae West, star and writer of "Sex," appears in court April 19 for sentence. A jury found the play "tending to corrupt the morals of youth."

JAIL HAS LAST LAUGH

HACKENSACK, N. J.—A year and a half ago Mrs. Marion Brazier sawed her way out of Hackensack county jail, where she was held on a bad check charge, and left behind a note addressed to the chief of police which said, with classic simplicity: "Laugh that off!" The other day Mrs. Brazier was captured in Boston and returned to Hackensack. She was greeted at the jail entrance by a hearty burst of laughter from the assembled jail attendants.

SNYDER TRIAL COSTLY JUMBLE OF "TRAINED SEALS" IS SAID

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

NEW YORK, Apr. 28.—It has taken the defense in the Snyder-Gray murder case an entire week to get a jury that is sufficiently dumb to give the Murder Tandem on trial anything like an even break.

Everybody's been trying to hurry the thing along; but you can't blame Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray for being a bit meticulous. Neither with justification can eminent counsel be censured.

Edgar F. Hazleton, senior solicitor for Mrs. Snyder, boasts that he has won his last eleven murder cases and that he's out to make it an "even dozen."

Hazleton is a former judge. He thinks well of himself and his ability, and his price is scaled to match his robust belief. It is costing relatives of Mrs. Snyder $25,000 for her defense. Her mother already has handed over two savings bank books, one for $3,389 and the other for $4,000, together with two mortgage bonds of $1,000 each. The bonds bear two years accumulated interest.

"And I'll get the other $15,000, I'm certain of that," she says. "My little baby never committed that foul crime and I'm out to free her of the charge."

What Gray's lawyers are getting deponent knoweth not and refuseth to hazard a guess. Gray's wife is heartbroken over her husband's plight, but refuses to be swept off her feet by hysteria. She has declined to sell the little bird-cage cottage in East Orange, where she and her 9-year-old daughter reside. Her husband's counsel will have to line their jeans with jack obtained elsewhere.

"The little home is all the child and I have left on earth," she says. "Why should I sell it? What good would it do?"

GRAY NEAR COLLAPSE

It may be that Gray's mother has supplied the foundation for the defense fund. She is present every day in court and one afternoon a meeting was arranged between her and her son in an anteroom adjoining the prison corridor. It had been a trying morning. Gray hadn't slept the night before. A man in a nearby cell had attempted suicide and his screams made sleep impossible. When Gray saw his mother face to face he rushed into her arms, buried his head on her shoulder and cried like a kid. He's shot to pieces and if he finally goes to the electric chair he'll be half dead before the end comes.

Gauged on a scale running from one to 100, the intelligence of the Snyder-Gray jury can safely be chalked at forty-three and a fraction. It is fitting that the "Great Dumb-Bell Murder" should be tried by a jury of that type. It was a crime conceived and executed within the borders of Moronia and in that domain of the fish-eyed will have its culmination.

Fitting, also, is it, that Ye Editors of the Capital of the Commonplace should have combed the town for Horn-Rim Head-liners, temporarily at liberty, to wield erotic Eberhard Fabers for the entertainment and instruction of The Circulation.

The group of Trained Seals embraces moralists, novelists, playwrights, psychologists, psycho-analysts, philosophers and sundry and various literati. At enormous guarantees these Ladies and Gents of the Face Feelers' Union have, in the short space of one week, demonstrated beyond peradventure that, in the lit'ry world at least, Reputation and Ability are no longer on speaking terms.

THEY MISSED THIS ONE

None of the hysterical editors thought of hiring a woman of the underworld to sit in and scrutinize Mrs. Snyder and her Leading Man, dictating her reactions to a member of the staff for presentation in parliamentary language. But it's a safe bet that had any of them done that little thing he'd have more glossy output than, for example, Willie Durant or W. E. Woodward is passing out.

The editor who hired Durant has this to say of the great man in a page advertisement in his paper:

"Perhaps there is not in the whole world another thinker who knows mankind more intimately than does Will Durant, author of 'The Story of Philosophy,' who has been engaged to write a series of articles on the Snyder murder. . . . . There will be no Sob Sister gush in what Durant writes, etc., etc."

And then, mark ye, Brethren, what Willie, The Thinker, has to say about Ruth Snyder:

"One can understand how this simple home grew too small for the dreams of Ruth Snyder . . . . The stillness and solitude of the place frightened her."

Wrong as usual, Willie. The only time Ruth Snyder ever had "dreams" was when she went to bed too soon after eating Welsh rabbit; and as for the "solitude of the little home frightening her," listen to this:

The other afternoon after the day's session, a newspaper camera man was posing her for a picture. He is a figety little chap. Mrs. Snyder arrested his energetic hand and said with a smile:

"Don't tremble so! What have you to shake about?"

Further along in his story Socrates the Second has this to say about Judd Gray:

"No doubt he, too, was hungry for romance; selling corsets is a thankless task in this corsetless age."

So much for Will Durant.

ABOUT THE BUNK

W. E. Woodward, known as "Wee Wee" Woodward, is another Great Author turned newspaper man.

"Wee Wee" wrote a book called "Bunk," which paved the way for his life of George Washington, wherein he did all any man could possibly do to tarnish the reputation of the First President.

Brother Woodward's editor blazons the intelligence that Washington's detractor will "debunk" the trial for the customers. There's been too much gush, sap and soft-soap in other murder trials. Read Woodward and encounter the unclad truth!

Thus we have Durant beclouding it and Woodward "debunking" it. And following is a sample of the Woodward process:

"For it must be remembered that Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray are not strangers or chance acquaintances. They have been lovers, and in the hot breath of love have mingled their sighs and kisses. And now they sit in the courtroom icily distant while the lawyers wrangle—and the ghost of the dead husband walks solemnly through this tawdry desolation, the picture wire round his neck and his blackened tongue lolling from his mouth."

De bunk? Yea, bo! De bunk pure and simple!

PRESENTING PEGGY JOYCE

Peggy Hopkins Joyce, sporting a card of admission, drops into the Press Box now and then, as does Sammy Shipman, who wrote a play called "Crime."

Dave Belasco, with his clerical collar and Old Black Joe shock of white hair, was advertised to be on hand, but as yet hasn't showed. Maybe there's been a washout on the line.

Natacha Rambova, Valentino's grief-stricken spouse, is also "doing" the trial, with a No. 2 Venus instead of an Eberhard-Faber.

D. W. Griffith, movie director and producer, is another "reporter." D. W. wrote "Broken Blossoms," you remember, and that qualifies him to carry a police card.

Rita Weiman, short story scribbler and playwright, appears in the court room daily. Rita wrote the other day: "The Snyder murder is stark realism, naked, bony, hideous."

Rita gets what they call down in Florida "earnest money" for that sort of stuff, so more power to her good, old, right arm. May her muscles hold out till the end!

Maurine Watkins is another member of the Tripe Troupe. Maurine wrote a play now running in New York, called "Chicago," dealing with certain dismal aspects of law and disorder in the City of Ham and Yeggs. What she has to say about Mrs. Snyder and Gray is, therefore, important.

If the Doctor cured little Fido, why not let him operate on Pop?

Justice Scudder won't permit photographers to work in the court-room, so the boys hang outside and are forced to the expedient of taking pictures of the court-house cat.

The Trained Seals in the Press Box were shown up pretty badly in the deadly monotony of the week taken to select the jury. It requires more than reputation to sit down day after day and bat out a readable yarn on the same old topic. On that assignment every one of the High-Priced Horn-Rims flopped, while every honest-to-goodness reporter made good.

They all got away from scratch on the first day, and it was a little old Manilla pay-envelope staff man, Alfred Segal, on the same paper that Durant is writing for, who pulled the best line of the series.

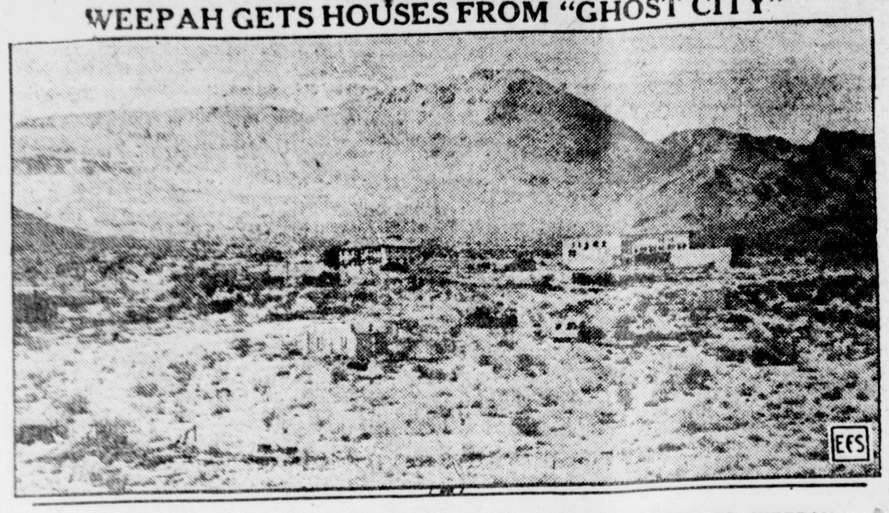

"Monday, April 18," he wrote. "This would have been Ruth Snyder's wash day!"

Heiress Weds

Here's the former Narcissa Vanderlip, daughter of Frank A. Vanderlip, millionaire Wall Street figure, on her wedding day. The bridegroom was Julian Street, Jr., son of the author. The bride is shown in her dress of ivory satin and old lace and a lace tulle veil that her mother wore. Her bouquet was of white iris, white columbine and orange blossoms.

WEEPAH GETS HOUSES FROM "GHOST CITY"

ABANDONED RHYOLITE, FROM WHICH HOUSES ARE BEING MOVED TO WEEPAH

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

WEEPAH, Nev., April 7.—The stampede to Weepah, Nev., with fevered gold hunters on trains, in motor cars and on horse-back, striving for "claims"—is recalling to old-timers a similar nightmare of years ago at Rhyolite, "the ghost city of Nevada," an old mining camp.

At the present time arrangements are being made to rush substantial buildings from Rhyolite and other "ghost cities" of the surrounding desert to Weepah. Sites for gambling palaces, dance halls, and other resorts have been selected, and shacks are being taken from Rhyolite, the deserted.

At one time Rhyolite burst in glory and dazzled the desert with its beauty—but it flickered out when its veins yielded the last ounce of gold.

SEE SEA SERPENTS

VANCOUVER, B. C., Apr. 27.—The North Pacific sea serpent season was officially opened today. Frederick Parnell, of Vancouver, reported that he and his brother had seen two sea serpents each thirty feet long in Howe Sound, off Gibsons Landing, 150 miles west of this place. Fishermen reported seeing the serpents, which, they said, could raise their heads six feet above the surface of the water. Most of the fish are reported to have fled from Howe Sound in fright.

COOLIDGE FAVORS WISCONSIN SUMMER

WASHINGTON, Apr. 28.—President Coolidge's choice of a summer White House has narrowed to three states, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, it was learned here today. For governmental and other reasons it is now unlikely that Mr. Coolidge will go further away from Washington.

The president was understood today to be favorable to Wisconsin, and more particularly to the Lake Geneva section where a palatial estate owned by William Wrigley has been offered him. The place is within three hours motoring distance of Chicago, and abounds with good fishing. No final decision has yet been made.

The Coolidges are expected to leave by the middle of June.

ALLEGED SLAYER IS HELD IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O., April 28.—John Burbridge, alleged slayer of John Compton, Jr., at Chagrin Falls ten days ago, and several suspects in the killing of Fred Hirsch, Ohio Bell Telephone Company repairman, during a holdup last Friday night, were under arrest here today following a police roundup of Cleveland's "roaring third" precinct last night.

Police say Burbridge admitted beating Compton with his fists during a drunken brawl, but denied using his heels.

While the roundup was in progress, Sam Nobile, 33, was shot down by unknown assailants in another part of the city, dying early today in St. Alexis Hospital. Detectives say he was the victim of a "bootleg war." A brother, Louis Nobile, was killed last summer in the same manner.

RIFLE TRAP SHOOTS VICTIM AT STATION

ZANESVILLE, O., April 28.—M. E. Carter, 24, Wheeling, W. Va., is in Bethesda Hospital here, with a bullet wound in his left hip, said by police to have been inflicted by a "trap rifle" in the filling station of S. S. Galloway, Norwich, early today.

According to Galloway, his filling station having been robbed several times during the past winter, he set a rifle trap after the last robbery, aiming the weapon at the door.

Carter gave no explanation of the incident, but asked that R. E. Carter at Wheeling, be notified.

Pimples, Boils, Skin Eruptions

Skilled physicians recognize the apearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S. You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin and makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

S.S.S. is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

FORD COLLECTION OF AMERICANA TO BE HOUSED IN MUSEUM

DETROIT, Apr. 28.—Meet Henry Ford, the collector!

America's first billionaire, known throughout the world as the flivver king, is gathering the greatest collection of Americana in all history.

Ford plans to construct a huge museum near his Dearborn estate to house the collection, so that it may present a permanent record of the social, agricultural, industrial and transportational development of the United States. It will be known as the Ford Museum and will be quite unlike anything else in the world.

One great corner of the Dearborn plant here has been used by Ford as temporary home for his collection. A visitor is staggered by the bewildering variety of articles, gathered from every section of the country. Nothing quite like it has ever been seen beneath a single roof.

The collection varies from the late Tom Thumb's thirty inch cane to an old fashioned sawmill, which was taken apart log by log, board by board, brought into the Ford factory and kept to be reassembled in the museum.

COLLECTION VARIES

A visual history of the automobile industry probably is favored by Ford himself over all the other antiques. The first Ford is there as are many of its brothers and sisters. And all these strange looking and mirth-provoking autocars are in excellent running condition. Ford has seen to that.

The collection of wagons fires the imagination. There is an oxcart with its wheels hammered out of solid oak, its floor and sides held together with wooden pegs. It still operates, although its age is estimated at close to 200 years. There are carriages, barouches, cabs, prairie schooners, of a dozen types and a half dozen huge stage-coaches for which the movies would pay a fortune.

Another section of the collection is devoted to farm implements. There are ploughs in a hundred forms. Several of the grain threshers are as large as locomotives. There are butter-churners, their handles worn smooth by human grips.

THE FURNITURE SECTION

The furniture section would make an antique collecter stark mad with envy. There are highboys, tremendous old four-posters, chairs that must have come over in the Mayflower, tables, bureaus, until one gets tired looking at them. The same thing can be said for the collection of table utensils, china-ware and whatever it was our fore-fthers used in eating their meals. There are even bath-tubs and one, black with age and shaped like a huge shoe, is said to be the one in which Charlotte Corday murdered Baignoire de Marat.

There are fifty sleighs of different designs, each to a different period of our history. There are music-boxes, which still grind out tunes favored in Civil War days. There are collections of shoes, bottles, pictures, school books, sleigh bells, hats, bicycles, Indian relics and lamps. The history of illumination may well be told by the latter, for it includes lamps carried by Roman soldiers in the days of the Vestal Virgins down to the first incandescent globes made by Thomas Edison.

Some day, Ford will place all these whispers of the past under a single roof and the museum may well take its place beside Niagara Falls as a mecca for Americans.

Best Speller

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

LONDON, O., Apr. 21.—Savants of Madison County, where spelling is a national pastime, are enthusiastic over, if a little puzzled by, the extraordinary skill demonstrated by Miss Anna Bell, now three times winner of the annual Madison County spelling contest. Apparently there is no word, in or out of the dictionary, that this freckled little girl cannot spell, instantly and without effort.

Anna is a junior in the Fairfield Township centralized high school. Her personality and temperament are normal in every way, except for her uncanny skill with words. She is an honor student and popular with her classmates, but when it comes to spelling bees, all competition is left at the post.

Miss Bell first displayed her gift two years ago. She was then fourteen, and a junior high school student. At the 1924 contest the list of words carefully prepared by expert educators as calculated to provide pitfalls for unwary entrants, was simple for Anna, who stood up in front of her audience and spelled each word correctly, almost before it had been pronounced by her interrogator.

When the official list of problems was exhausted, Anna had defeated every other contestant, and her score was 100 per cent. The puzzled pedagogues held a conference. A messenger was dispatched at full speed for a dictionary. The dictionary provided no example of the English language, however long, or however tricky, which Anna even hesitated over. She spelled troglodyte, ptarmigan, and interprotovertebral, just as simply as the average individual spells "fish."

The same thing happened last year, and now Anna has repeated her former triumphs in the 1927 contest. Madison County is seriously considerig a national spelling bee, to which the best spellers of the forty-eight states of the union would be invited. If such a contest could be promoted, Madison County is prepared to risk its last nickel on Anna's ability to outspell the nation, after which a petition to include spelling in the Olympic games would be a natural development.

Kill rats wholesale

Get rid of them safely. Here's a new sure way. K-R-O, a fine non-poisonous powder, kills 'em off in a hurry. Made from squill bulbs, the new safe way urged by government experts.

Safe for poultry and pets

Actual tests proved that it killed rats and mice every time but other animals and poultry were not injured by the largest doses. Think what that means to farmers and merchants.

Not a poison

Use K-R-O freely. Place it around your home, your barn, your granary or farmyard. Contains no arsenic, phosphorus or barium-carbonate. 75c at your druggist. Satisfaction guaranteed.

A Word With the Old Folks

Elderly People Are Learning Importance of Good Elimination.

IN the later years of life there is apt to be a slowing up of the bodily functions. Good elimination, however, is just as essential to the old as to the young. Many old folks have learned the value of Doan's Pills when a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys is required. Scanty or burning passages of kidney secretions are often signs of improper kidney function. In most every community are scores of users and endorsers who acclaim the merit of Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Whole Chesapeake Family Built to Rugged Health

L. M. McMasters, his wife and three children, all ill. Entire family used Tanlac and grew back to vigorous health. Give full credit to Tanlac for quick recovery

Mr. McMasters lives on Sims Creek Road, Chesapeake, Ohio. Of his recent trying experience he says: "For two years stomach and liver trouble had gradually run me down and when constipation developed that seemed the last straw needed to break me, and to make things worse all of my family were sick more or less all the time. My wife was subject to nervous attacks that kept us all awake at night. The children caught colds for no apparent reason and were confined to bed for several days at a time. None of us were getting the proper nourishment, and temporary relief would be followed by fresh attacks.

"We decided to give Tanlac a trial and it put us all on our feet. Our grocery bills are much higher now. We have no expense for medicines for we all eat heartily, and our food does us good. That was some time ago and we've all enjoyed the finest health since, eating and sleeping normally and getting full value out of life. All the credit belongs to Tanlac."

If overwork or neglect have left their mark on you, try Tanlac. It is nature's own body builder, made from herbs, roots and barks. Your druggist has it. Over 52 million bottles sold.

She was a helpless victim

No matter how hard she tried, she just kept on being irritable and unpleasant. And who wouldn't? She was always having splitting sinus headaches—a terrible penalty of catarrh.

Yet Hall's Catarrh Medicine will change all that. If you are a sufferer, it will bring relief to you, as it has to thousands of others.

Catarrhal deafness—inflamed sinuses—catarrhal headaches—catarrhal bad breath—yield to its power.

Xenia Scouts will probably go to Dayton Saturday to witness the proceedings when Dayton Scouts fake a hurricane scene at Riverview Park as a means of demonstrating the ability of Scouts to be of instant service in the event of a real catastrophe. Illustrations of all forms of Scout craft will be conducted.

The start of the hurricane will be announced by a signal, set off by a fleet of bombing planes, and Scouts will be dispatched throughout the city to the park to mobilize.

Upon reaching the park, they will be assigned to administer first aid service to the "wounded" and transport patients to pup tents, where hospital service will be given the supposed injured.

CHAPTER XLIV (CONTINUED)

Sylvia vividly remembered that doctor book. It had been one of the horrors of her childhood. Whenever she had had an ache or a pain, Aunt Agony had taken down the "doctor book" and then administered castor oil in large quantities.

"Now, Agony, don't start giving that child medicine," said Dr. Buzzard, eyeing the "doctor book" with a dislike and distrust. He had known Agony Starr for thirty years, and he knew her failings.

"Have you given him any castor oil?" demanded Aunt Agony, with a war-like look. She tossed her head so that all the little jet flowers on her hat danced wildly.

"No, and he doesn't need any, either!" Dr. Buzzard came back at her. "He needs just what he's getting—a good sleep."

Aunt Agony opened her black silk bag with a smart click and took out the bottle of castor oil she had just bought at an all-night drug store. She shook it in Dr. Buzzard's surprised face.

"I raised Sylvia on this!" she said grimly. "I raised her on it, and look at her! Look at her!"

The old doctor did look at Sylvia, then, and he winked, too. "Sylvia, I depend upon you to see that your aunt doesn't give the baby a drop of anything tonight. I think he'll be all right in the morning," he said. "Anyway, I'll drop around and see."

He picked up his bag and started away with a cheerful "Goodnight to you!"

At the door he bumped into Ranny, who was stupidly trying to find the key-hole.

As the doctor passed him, he straightened up and opened his mouth to speak to him.

But the doctor went straight down the stairs without so much as a look at him. He had had no earthly use for Randall Phelps since the night when Junior was born—the night when Ranny had not come home until dawn!

* * *

"What's th' matter? Baby sick?" Ranny asked, as he took off his coat in the tiny hallway and hung it up. His voice was thick and it seemed hard for him to talk clearly.

Sylvia wished that there was some way of getting him off to bed without letting Aunt Agony see him in this state.

But Aunt Agony was all primed for him, and the instant he set foot in the living room she fairly pounced upon him as a clever old cat might pounce upon a hapless mouse.

"Hah!" she snorted, "so you're here! 'Better late than never,' eh? Well, you're a fine one, aren't you?"

She looked him up and down with a blighting look. "A fine time you were having with that trollop hanging to your arm this afternoon while your wife was home nursing a sick baby! What do you mean by such actions, eh?"

Ranny looked at her and then lounged across the room for a cigaret from the mantel shelf. He struck a match to it lazily before he answered her.

"I don't know what you're talking about," he said then, without looking at her. "If you mean that I was with Miss Leopold this afternoon, I admit that I was with her. Sylvia and I had dinner with her downtown tonight, and you might tell your friend, Sarah Wilk, that her brother was along, too."

Aunt Agony's eyebrows almost vanished in her hair with surprise.

"Is that true, Sylvia?" she asked. She didn't take Ranny's word on anything.

Sylvia nodded.

"She's a great friend of Sylvia's," Ranny added, stretching the truth almost to the breaking point. But Sylvia let him tell his lie.

Suddenly she didn't care whether Ranny was in love with Elsie Leopold or not. She didn't care whether he told the truth to Aunt Agony or to anybody else!

Nothing mattered very much to her just now but the little baby that lay, breathing so loudly, in his tiny room—the little baby that was her flesh and Ranny's, her spirit and Ranny's.

"Oh, you don't think he's going to die?" she asked piteously of Aunt Agony, and threw herself on that narrow, virginal breast with a half-smothered sob.

But it was Ranny who answered her.

"Of course he's not going to die! Control yourself, Sylvia," he said, gruffly. "You're just nervous, that's all. Better come to bed."

He went there himself.

Presently Aunt Agony stretched her thin body on the davenport and dozed, too.

But Sylvia sat all night on the edge of the baby's small bed with one of his hot little hands in hers. Toward morning she fell asleep.

* * *

When she woke up it was light. The baby was not so feverish as he had been, and he was in what Aunt Agony called "a beautiful sleep" when she tiptoed in to look at him.

"Your husband just left for the office," she added bitterly. "I suppose he didn't want to see me again this morning! Well, it doesn't hurt my feelings a bit to have him out of the house, not a bit!"

At nine o'clock Ranny telephoned. "I left my watch and a lot of important papers on my chiffonier," he told Sylvia. "Get a cab and bring 'em right down to the office, will you?"

Sylvia tore herself away from the baby and went. To leave the tiny thing was almost like leaving part of herself behind her in the house, he seemed so much a part of her. And his sick little voice said nothing but "Mother—Mother," over and over.

She found Ranny in his father's old office.

He looked very fine and important sitting behind the broad mahogany desk, when she went in. He was talking over the telephone, and he put one hand over the mouthpiece and whispered to her to sit down.

Sylvia sank into the chair beside his desk, and it was then that she noticed for the first time that a girl sat at another desk in the corner.

She looked up and grinned at Sylvia with teeth that were startlingly white in her brown face—the brown, gipsyish face of Elsie Leopold!

"Why, whatever are you doing here?" Sylvia found herself asking, before she knew that the words were out of her mouth.

For Elsie seemed very much at home, here in Ranny's office! Her hat and coat hung on the hook behind her, and there was a potted flower on her desk.

She laughed outright at Sylvia's question. "Now, looky here, don't you start to be jealous of me!" she said in her impudent, brazen way. "Your husband is simply letting me use this desk for an hour or so every day until I get my own shop, so don't misunderstand the thing!"

Sylvia gave her a long, still look from those deep eyes of hers. It was a look that made the girl at the desk feel guilty and common and cheap, all at once—a look that made her blush under her thick layers of make-up.

"No, I don't misunderstand anything," said Sylvia, turning away. "I think I understand some things, too well."

She laid Ranny's watch and papers on his desk. As she went through the door of his office he called to her to wait, but perhaps she didn't hear him, for she went straight on. The door closed slowly behind her and clicked shut.

CHAPTER XLV

OUTSIDE in the street, wet and cheerless with November rain, Sylvia's cab still waited for her.

"Take me home," she said to the driver as she got into it, "and hurry, please!"

She was in a fever to get back to the baby. Above the whirring of the traffic, she could hear his sick little wail. And his small face haunted her.

Oh, what difference did it make after all, if he had given Elsie Leopold deskroom in his office? What earthly difference did it make if they were there together from morning until night, making love to each other, no doubt?

It made no difference at all to Sylvia that morning, and for many mornings to come.

Ranny's faithlessness suddenly had lost its power to hurt her. Nothing had any power to hurt her, now, but the thought of the baby at home in his tiny, stuffy room, with its one window that opened on a dark air-shaft. She had no thought but to get back to that room just as fast as she could.

But halfway home, she saw something that made her lean forward and ask the driver to turn and take her back to Ranny's office.

That 'something" was nothing more or less than a bright colored advertisement on a signboard they happened to be passing.

It showed the picture of a healthy, rosy-cheeked baby in a red sweater-suit. The kind of baby that Ranny, Junior, should be—and was not.

Under the picture was the legend "Rent that home in the country, now, and keep the kiddies healthy." It was an ad for Ranny's own company—"Jamison Phelps & Son!"

Ten minutes later when Sylvia opened the door of Ranny's office and stepped inside, he glanced up at her in amazement. Then he shot Elsie Leopold a warning look that Sylvia didn't even see.

But Elsie jumped up, and hurried out of the office, leaving a strong taint of perfume in the air behind her.

When they were alone, Sylvia told Ranny what she had come back to tell him.

She told it to him in a voice that he hardly knew. A dull, heavy voice with all the tender little golden notes gone out of it.

"You people have some houses for rent out in the country. I saw them advertised," she said. "I want one of them right away, so that I can get into it on the first of December."

His eyes widened, then narrowed. "You're not leaving me?" he asked. "You're not going away by yourself?"

She shook her head. "Don't be silly," she said, "it's because of Junior that I want to get away. He can't stay in The Nest any more. He's going to die if he does—"

"Oh, nonsense, Sylvia!" Ranny broke in. "Thousands of healthy kids live in town and in flats, too."

"Not in rooms that open on an air-shaft," Sylvia shook her head, "and our baby isn't a healthy baby. He never schuld have lived in town at all. You get the house, that's all—I have plenty of money for the rent. You get the house!"

Then she was gone. Ranny heard one uncontrollable sob escape her lips as she shut the door and went out.

He picked up his desk telephone and asked his brother-in-law to come into his office for a minute. Thomas Boyle knew more about the business of the Phelps Company in one minute than Ranny would ever know!

"Thomas," he said to him, "Sylvia's got some fool idea in her head that she wants to live in the country now. Look at those houses of ours up on Sunnington Heights and see if you can find one about the size of your bungalow, will you? I'd do it myself but I have an important engagement."

What that important engagement was Thomas Boyle never knew, but it kept Ranny away from the office all day.

Elsie Leopold left shortly after he drove away in his Tanbe roadster. She did not come back, either.

* * *

Dr. Buzzard's shabby green car swung into Wing Street just ahead of the taxicab. Sylvia could just make out the blurred outlines of it through the rain that was coming down in bucketsful now.

As she paid the taxi driver she saw him emerge from it and go swiftly across the sidewalk to the apartment. He had said last night that he would drop in to see the baby this morning, but there was something about his haste that made Sylvia's heart leap with fear.

She rushed up the stairs behind him and reached the door of The Nest just as Aunt Agony opened it.

"The baby's worse," she said, looking from one to the other of them, nervously. "He's like a live coal—he's so hot. And I can't make him open his eyes."

Sylvia turned to go into the little room off the air shaft, but Aunt Agony caught her in her thin arms. "No, no, don't go in there the way you are—all cold and wet," she said sharply, and pushed her down into a chair.

Then she helped her out of her damp coat and pulled off her little felt hat and shook it. "Poor child!" she murmured, as if to herself, and shook her head.

There came a knock on the outer door.

Aunt Agony opened it to the Lister twins, who had come for their weekly music lesson. She briskly sent them away and came back to stroke Sylvia's hair with her rough, capable hands while they waited for Dr. Buzzard to come out of the sickroom.

"Now, then, Sylvia," she said presently, "that's an awfully sick little baby in there, and you've got to make up your mind—"

Sylvia didn't wait to hear the rest of what she had to say. She wrenched herself out of Aunt Agony's arms and flew into her bedroom—hers and Ranny's. She sank down on the floor and gave way to the storm of tears that she had been holding back all morning.

She cried and cried, but her tears brought her no relief.

When Dr. Buzzard came to the door and tapped lightly on it, she raised a face swollen and reddened with her grief.

"Well?" she asked, and looked at him with hard, sullen eyes.

But the old doctor had not lived with sickness and death for thirty years for nothing. In that time he had learned things about the human heart that only doctors and nurses and ministers ever do learn about it. And so he knew that Sylvia's sullenness masked the pain and torment that were in her heart that morning.

He put out one of his hands and took hers in it. "My dear, the baby has a pretty heavy cold;" he told her the truth in his kindly way. "It's down in his chest. I've told Agony just what to do for him today, and I'll be around again about supper time."

HOPE IS SEEN IN FLOOD SITUATION

PEACE PORTENDS DOOM AWAITING POYDRAS

Fruitful Fields And Homes Sacrifice To Great City

NEW ORLEANS, April 28. — A green and fruitful countryside lay hushed in the sun of this April morning, waiting for the doom that has been decreed for it.

A pall of dust, beaten up from the highway in the hasty flight of its people, by their trucks, their trudging feet, the shuffling pace of their herded cattle, has settled over Poydras, where the engineers will break the levee at noon tomorrow and open a course over fertile fields for the pent and raging waters of the Mississippi.

A group of newspapermen climbing to the top of the Poydras levee for a last look at the pleasant land, startled into clumsy flight several buzzards which had been drawn there by the evil premonition of disaster, and that was all.

Poydras and its surrounding country is being sacrificed that the greater New Orleans may be saved and its air today was that of a lonely place, wistfully and inarticulately resigned to a dire fate. Most of the dwellers in the community had gone to New Orleans, where a teeming refugee camp has been established in the International Trade Exposition Building.

Since Tuesday night the Poydras Pike had been a stifling course of heavy dust, kicked up by the exodus of the fugitives. The neat homes are closed and shuttered.

Not all of these homes were deserted placidly. There is about Poydras and its neighborhood a charm and grace of antiquity which shows that many have lived, labored, loved, and died there. A cluster of crumbling brick huts, the former dwelling place of slaves of the great plantation that was the communities beginning stands not far from the spot of willows and smooth-cropped grass on the levee bank where the way is to be blasted for the flood.

And now far away are the red brick ruins of the old Versailles plantation home, which seem hardly less ancient than the water oaks and their festoons of gray moss. Poydras is old.

And it was accordingly not easy to win the agreement of all persons in the settlement to desert their homes to the flood. Some of the most deeply rooted inhabitants in a flare of defiance refused to move. For the most part these have been won over to reason through intercession by influential neighbors.

"There has been some talk of danger of shooting when the engineers go to break the levee," said a prominent New Orleans civic leader. "We are hoping that everything has been worked out, and that with our assurances of ample indemnities, and of every possible means of relief, our friends in Poydras will be reconciled but we are not sure that this is completely so."

An immediate relief fund of $150,000 has been raised among fifty New Orleans banks and business leaders. This matter of indemnity is necessarily unofficial at this stage, and it will be largely defrayed by private purses.

Some of the Poydras irreconcilables are known to be dubious about the situation. One of the interesting points is the levee at Poydras which is being blown to save New Orleans. It was constructed by Poydras people. It is all theirs, and it is a good one. As a matter of fact, it rises ten to twelve feet above the flood level, while the levee top at New Orleans is barely three feet above the rising water. There was a break at Poydras in the great flood of 1922, after which Poydras people had gone methodically about eliminating the danger of another disaster of the sort.

Poydras is a community of numerous churches, some of them quite old, and a fine school. One of the trucks serving the relief work was laden Thursday with desks and another with equipment from the school, which is being transplanted in New Orleans, where the children will be assembled to continue their instructions as far as possible.

One of the Poydras owners who will be injured most severely by the flood is Theodore Grunewald, the former hotel proprietor, who has developed one of the most beautiful estates in these parts at Poydras, with formal gardens, chickens to the number of 70,000 or so, flowers and all else that goes with a beautiful home. Yet Grunewald, looking to the protection of New Orleans as the most essential thing, was one of the most active figures in urging an artificial break at Poydras.

Poydras was named for Julien Poydras, the first poet and philanthropist of the province of Louisiana when it was a possession of France. Julien Poydras born in 1740, was a gallant figure, and wrote the first epic poem in Louisiana literature and founded an orphanage which has been one of the outstanding institutions of Louisiana. The people of New Orleans like to think that Julien Poydras, with his flaming devotion to the young city of his day, would have been with Theodore Grunewald and others who have worked assiduously for the sacrificial devastation of a village that one of the greatest cities in the world might be saved.

AMERICAN CIRCLES IN CHINA OPPOSED TO PRESENT POLICY

Report MacMurray May Resign—Missions Are Looted

LONDON, April 28.—President Coolidge's speech in New York on Monday regarding the American foreign policy and that towards China in particular has been received with "unconcealed disgust" in American circles in Peking, according to the Daily Telegraph correspondent. This dispatch states that the president's promises of protection for American lives and property are regarded as valueless since no redress has been insisted upon for the looting of the American consulate.

Reports received here have been plain in indicating that American circles in Peking are not entirely in sympathy with the Washington policy and would favor a stronger stand. There have been some intimations that American Minister Mac Murray might find it convenient to offer his resignation if an opportunity to do so arises which will not cause embarrassment to the American government.

The British press is very cautious but indicates that there is a good deal of dissatisfaction in official circles with the attitude the United States has taken relative to the second note of protest regarding the Nanking affair.

Some members of the cabinet are insisting that Great Britain act alone, and there seems to be an attempt to regard the United States as adopting a policy of hindrance.

PARIS, Apr. 28.—If the United States refuses to join the powers in the new note of protest to the Chinese nationalists over the Nanking affair France will refuse likewise, the foreign office announced today.

France is prepared to assume an attitude of watchful waiting it was stated.

SHANGHAI, Apr. 28.—Chiang Kai Shek and his moderate followers are beginning to loom as the real power in nationalist China.

Reports from Hankow indicate that Chiang has administered heavy defeats to the extremist armies in the vicinity of Kiukiang and appears likely to make good his threat to take over Hankow. There are reports that the extremist armies are not offering much resistance. At the same time Chang Tso Lin's armies are marching against Hankow and observers here anticipate an agreement between Chiang and Chang Tso Lin.

Residences of American missionaries at Kiukiang were looted and later were occupied by Chinese troops.

The British concession at Kiukiang was endangered by undisciplined communists, who fell back before the advance of Gen. Chiang's army. The "whites" then speeded up their advance in hope of completing the rout of their foes in the eastern part of the Kiukiang district.

YOUTH KEPT ALIVE BY FRIENDS BETTER PHYSICIANS STATE

Artificial Means Keeps Spark Of Life Burning

ROANOKE, Va., Apr. 28.—Walter L. Boothe, the 18-year-old youth who has been kept alive for nearly five days by artificial respiration, induced by the untiring efforts of his friends, was better today.

"Its amazing, but true," said a physician at Jefferson Hospital where the grim battle is being waged night and day. The tenacity with which the wasted youth clings to life has astounded the staff of physicians.

Steadily, hour after hour for 165 hours, friends of the youth, working in relays, have pumped his arms up and down, up and down, forcing the life-sustaining air into his paralyzed lungs. The pain he suffers is intense, yet he has not complained, and even manages to smile wanly at his relatives and loyal friends.

The doctor says there is no hope, that he is steadily growing weaker and that it is only a matter of time until the system collapses under the strain of artificial breathing. Last night they believed he was going, yet this morning they admitted he was better.

Walter himself is resigned to death.

GOVERNOR DONAHEY MOVES VETO RECORD TO FIFTEEN BILLS

Approves Bill That Regulates Operation Of Home Here

COLUMBUS, O., Apr. 28.—Governor Vic Donahey's vetoes of measures enacted during the present session of the Ohio legislature stood at fifteen today.

The latest measure to receive the governor's disapproval is the bill, by Rep. Jos. G. Ehrlich, Cleveland, authorizing boards of education in Cleveland and Cincinnati to employ their own legal advisers and attorneys.

The governor permitted the Jones Emergency act, empowering boards of education receiving state aid to borrow money in anticipation of state aid to pay teachers' salaries, to become a law without his approving signature.

The governor, it was announced, signed the bill, by Sen. L. T. Marshall, Xenia, restricting admissions to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, Xenia, to residents of Ohio, and placing the institution under the board of trustees, instead of the superintendent.

Declaring the Ehrlich bill, which he vetoed, would create additional expense because of duplication of housing facilities, equipment and law libraries, Donahey voiced the belief that the city solicitor should furnish the school boards with counsel.

TEST IS SUCCESS

Gray's Friend Takes Stand

INSURANCE MAN WHO HELPED MAKE ALIBI RELATES HIS STORY

Taxi Driver Tells Of Taking Gray From Crime Scene

COURTHOUSE, Long Island City, N. Y., April 28. — Haddon Gray, nattily dressed Syracuse, N. Y., insurance man, who helped Henry Judd Gray arrange an "alibi" in Syracuse while the latter was in Queens village on the gory business of slaying Albert Snyder on March 20, last, took the witness stand at the Snyder-Gray trial today and related his connection with the case.

Haddon Gray was an old school chum, but no relative of Henry Judd Gray.

Mrs. Ruth Snyder, co-defendant with Judd Gray, watched the witness closely through narrowed eyes.

Paul Mathis, a taxicab driver, took the witness stand as the first witness today and testified that Gray was his fare from Jamaica, L. I., to New York on that morning.

Previous witnesses had testified that after Gray left the Snyder home he took a bus to Jamaica.

Mathis said Gray, carrying brief case and overcoat, asked him to drive him to New York City, which he did. The fare was $3.50.

The courtroom was packed. Spectators stood three deep along the walls.

Mrs. Snyder was paler than usual when she took her accustomed seat. Gray sat with head bowed, a dejected figure.

Newcombe asked the court to instruct the jury that the exhibits found at the murder scene— the sash weight, picture wire, etc — were introduced against both defendants.

Justice Townsend Scudder said to the jury:

"Gentlemen, consider the exhibits (they lay on the table in front of the jury) for what they are worth."

Mathis was the thirty-eighth witness so far called. The state said it has six more witnesses and then it will rest its case.

Mrs. Snyder will probably take the stand as the first witness for her side in the dual defense, it was indicated from an authoritative source.

Attorney William J. Millard wanted to know if the witness remembered what clothing Gray wore that morning. Mathis said he couldn't, but he could remember Gray's face.

"Why?" Millard wanted to know.

Because, Mathis answered, when Gray gave him a nickel tip it was so unusual he took a good look at him.

BRAZILIAN FLYER OFF OVER ATLANTIC

RIO JANEIRO, April 28.— The Brazilian hydroplane "Jahu," under the command of the Brazilian aviator Ribeiro Barros, took off from Porto Praia, Cape Verde Islands, at 4:12 a. m. today in an attempt to fly across the Atlantic, according to reports from Fernando De Noronha.

The plane is expected to arrive at Fernando at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

"AMERICAN LEGION" CRASHES

ELEVEN INJURED WHEN INDIANA ELECTRIC CARS COLLIDE AT GARY

GARY, Ind., April 28.—Eleven were injured, several seriously, in a head-on collision between two Indiana Harbor Electric Line cars today.

Both cars immediately caught fire and were almost completely destroyed.

A heavy fog was believed responsible for the crash.

Presence of mind of Lawrence Cable, one of the motormen, was believed to have saved many lives. He opened the doors after throwing on the brakes and shouted a warning to the passengers.

THE QUIZ GAME

Have you been bitten with the "question and answer" bug? The quiz game is sweeping the country like the cross-word puzzle rage did a year or two ago.

Everywhere people are puzzling their brains to place some familiar quotation or to remember the name of Helen of Troy's husband.

Greene Countians, being normal Americans, will be swept along with the quiz game sooner or later. For that reason this newspaper is pleased to announce that it is ready to present a brand new "question and answer" game in an entirely original manner.

This new quiz game will not ask you a number of impossible questions unanswerable outside of a university faculty meeting or an encyclopedia publishing house. It will ask you questions that, as daily newspaper readers, you are familiar with and should know. It tests your powers of observation, your diligence in reading the newspapers and your memory. The questions are based on news stories that have appeared in the few days preceding their appearance. The questions will be printed on one page, the answers on another.

A series of them will furnish interesting contests for parties or congenial gatherings. Look for the new feature in THE EVENING GAZETTE and THE MORNING REPUBLICAN.

LEAPS TO DEATH

CLEVELAND, O., April 28.—The body of a man believed to be A. E. Wolk, of Akron, was being held in county morgue here today awaiting instructions from relatives. The man leaped to death from a fifty foot cliff into Lake Erie last night, leaving a note addressed to "John, Mary and Sadie" which read: "Don't worry or go to any expense. Wishing the best of luck for all of you."

TWENTY DROWN

KIEFF, Soviet Russia, April 28.—Twenty persons were drowned when a small steamer sank in the Dneiper River near Kaminsky today.

GIN AND JEALOUSY; POLICE BLAME THEM FOR ACTOR'S DEATH

Wife Of Film Cowboy Held For Killing Tom Kerrick

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—Gin and jealousy. This combination together with a convenient automatic, according to police, resulted in the death of Tom Kerrick, 32, film cowboy. His wife, Sarah, occupied a jail cell today, charged with shooting her husband—the climax of a gay party in Kerrick's Hollywood home.

Four other persons, all motion picture "extras," were held as material witnesses.

The county grand jury will sift the facts in the case when it meets today. So far questioning has produced nothing but a mass of conflicting stories.

Police said all those quizzed were so intoxicated no coherent story of the shooting could be obtained.

Kerrick has been in motion pictures for about three years, playing minor parts, always of the cowboy variety. He appeared in several pictures with Helen Holmes, an actress identified with the "thriller" type of picture. Kerrick rode the range in Arizona for many years and at one time was a deputy sheriff at Florence, Ariz.

POLA PICKS GOWN BUT NOT RITE

PARIS, April 28.—Pola Negri has decided upon the style of her wedding gown but she hasn't decided upon the style of her wedding.

Pola stated today that she and her fiance Prince Mdivani have not yet agreed on what form of a marriage ceremony they shall accept, as there is a difference in their religions.

"I know it would displease mother if I should marry outside of my religion," said Pola. "On the other hand the prince's father would object strenuously if he give up his religion."

Pola has decided that her wedding gown shall be a "robe de style" in keeping with her Louis Sixteen chateau, where the wedding will take place.

ASK BROADCASTING STATIONS TO FAVOR FREE SPEECH RIGHT

Threaten Amendment By Congress To Enforce Principles

WASHINGTON, April 28.—An appeal to broadcasting stations to observe the recognized American principles of free speech is under consideration by the federal radio commission.

Commissioner H. A. Bellows said today that while the federal law gives the commission no power of censorship over programs, broadcasters may be asked to cooperate to assure freedom of speech.

"If the broadcasters do not carry out these principles congress may step in with an amendment to compel their recognition," Bellows said.

"Broadcasting stations under the law are not a public utility yet, despite claims to this effect that have been placed before the commission. Their programs cannot be regulated, except in a degree to say that cannot be done. We are endeavoring to consider the stations as a combination of the theatre and the newspaper."

Because of the claim that speakers discussing controversial subjects have been "cut off" or forced to talk to "dead microphones," and that others have been refused permission to appear at all unless they submitted their talks for censorship of the station management, many complaints have been brought to the commission.

Under existing law the operator of a broadcasting station has the same right to censor the programs presented as has the editor to reject information to be published in his magazine.

The only exception to the right of censorship contained in the radio law provides that all political parties shall have equal rights "on the air."

With the opening of the national campaign next year it was anticipated that the radio would be used widely in presenting the various political issues. Difficulty in enforcing the political equality provisions of the law are anticipated.

CHICAGO JUBILANT AS POLICE EXPRESS TOLERANCE POLICY

Chief Tells Captains To Ignore Hip Flasks In Chi

CHICAGO, April 28.—Chicagoans today were jubilant over what was regarded as the commencement of a tolerant police attitude toward hip flasks and a friendly bottle of beer in the larder, in keeping with the campaign promises of Mayor William Hale Thompson.

Lifting the lid was begun, according to politicians, with the address of Chief of Police Hughes to his fifty captains in which he intimated that "frisking pantries for pints" was of less importance than running crooks out of the city.

"You are not to condone any notorious or flagrant gambling, vice or bootlegging, of course," said Hughes, "but these things should be secondary. If a man wants to have a good time, that's his business, so long as he doesn't violate the law or interfere with the rights of others.

"The policeman's job is to catch thieves and thugs and that is what I want you to concentrate on in managing your districts."

ENGINEERS EXPECT ARTIFICIAL BREAK WILL SOLVE MENACE

Fifty Thousand Work To Strengthen Levee North Of City

NEW ORLEANS, April 28. —Renewed hope that further disaster might be avoided came to hundreds of thousands in Louisiana today as the crest of the Mississippi flood reached Vicksburg, 400 miles above New Orleans.

Army engineers, who are directing upwards of 50,000 men engaged in a heroic struggle to keep the river within threatened levees along its lower reaches, believe that barring heavy rains within the next three days, the last and most critical phases of the devastating flood may pass the city and spend itself through the artificial crevasse to be opened tomorrow at Poydras, ten miles south of here.

The most threatening situation today was at Angola, Louisiana, opposite the mouth of the Red River where the supreme effort of the defenders of New Orleans is being made to save the weakening levees.

A break at Angola would unleash the Mississippi River in unmeasured stretches of Louisiana flats. Twelve thousand men organized in military units are employed in strengthening the levee lines, repairing wave washes and capping low stretches near Angola. Fifty barges are concentrated in the region to carry materials to the threatened sections.

More than 5,000,000 bags of sand already have been placed in position along some twenty-three miles of dyke and millions of feet of lumber have been used in reinforcing walls.

"There is reason to be hopeful," said Major W. H. Holcombe, in charge of levee operations south of Vicksburg. "There is still possibility of breaks in the line above New Orleans where in some spots the levees are not quite so strong as those protecting New Orleans, but every hour that passes brightens the prospect that the weakest point may hold."

The Red River is rising between Shreveport and Alexandria, La., but the army engineers anticipate this swell will reach the Mississipppi eight or ten hours before the crest of the upper valley flood.

State engineers made final preparations today for the blasting of the levee at Poydras, La., ten miles below New Orleans. The crevasse is expected to carry off sufficient water to reduce the level at New Orleans at least thirty inches.

Flood losses throughout the entire Mississippi system were estimated by Secretary Hoover today at approximately $200,000,000.

Two hundred thousand people are homeless or stranded on high ground without food, according to Hoover's latest reports.

Intensive organization for the relief of thousands forced from their homes in Saint Bernard and Plaquemines parishes by the decision to open the Poydras levee were perfected today. Unbroken lines of refugees from the territory sacrificed to the safety of New Orleans still moved into the city, and more than 2,500 had arrived before noon. Special camps have been provided under the direction of the Red Cross and state Adjutant General L. A. Toombs.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., April 28.—Five new death from floods from a break in the Arkansas River near Pendelton, Ark., were reported today.

None of the five bodies have been identified. The bodies of three Negroes and two white men were found near Tillar, Ark., by rescue workers.

GREENVILLE, Miss., April 28. —Armed with orders to "shoot to kill if necessary," national guardsmen here are enforcing strict curfew over this water-soaked city to end looting.

All persons on the streets after 8 o'clock at night are arrested unless they have a pass. These passes are issued by the national guard.

SENTENCE NEGRO ON ATTACK CHARGE

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Philip Jackson, a Negro, was under sentence of death today for criminally attacking Mrs. Daisy Elling, white, in the grounds of the capitol two months ago. The jury recommended the death penalty, which makes it mandatory.

The District of Columbia has a new electric chair, having abandoned the old gallows. Jackson probably will be the first victim.

SAVED FROM FUMES

CLEVELAND, O., April 28.—Awkened by gas fumes at his home early today, Warren Fartiannno, 8, although nearly overcome, managed to reach a telephone. Police arrived with pulmotors in time to revive the eight members of the Fartianno family.

FIVE FAMOUS PAINTINGS ARE STOLEN FROM MOSCOW MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS

MOSCOW, April 28.—Soviet police today are trying to trace thieves that stole five world-famous paintings, valued at more than 1,000,000 roubles from the museum of fine arts during the Russian Easter holidays.

While there is no trace of the thieves they are believed to belong to an international ring, acting under the direction of some "educated master mind" abroad, since the pictures taken were the jewels of the collection.

The stolen canvasses are a portrait of Christ by Rembrandt; a Titian called, "This is the Man"; a Vittore Pisano entitled, "Chastisement by Christ", and Carlo Dolche's "John the Baptist."

The Rembrandt canvas was badly mutilated, the figure being cut out from the background. The others had been lifted from their frames with extreme care.

PRINCE CAROL ILL

PARIS, April 28.—Former Crown Prince Carol, of Roumania, is recovering from a week's illness that almost developed into pneumonia it was learned today. The Roumanian premier asked the Roumanian delegation to send daily bulletins upon the prince's condition.

HEWITT WILL BE YOUNGEST TO DIE IN CHAIR

COLUMBUS, O., Apr. 28.—If Floyd Hewitt, convicted slayer from Conneaut, O., is executed August 10, as scheduled, for killing little Fred Brown, Jr., 5, he will be the youngest murderer ever to die in the electric chair in Ohio, Warden P. E. Thomas of the state penitentiary declared today.

Several 17-year-old slayers have died in the chair since it was substituted for hanging as the legal method of execution, in April, 1897, the warden said. Hewitt is only a few months past his sixteenth birthday.

Although hangings were performed in the various counties by the county sheriffs prior to the use of the electric chair, and records here are incomplete, Thomas said that he knew of one murderer younger than Hewitt who went to his death on the gallows. The slayer was Otto Lueth, of Cleveland, convicted of murdering Mrs. Maggie Thompson, and was hanged in 1890, when only a few days past sixteen years old.

SUIT DESIGNED TO QUIET TITLE FILED; SALE IS ORDERED

Suit designed to quiet the title on certain property described in the petition, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by J. Oliver Jobe, naming as defendants, John Johnson, Laura B. Northup, Lean Huntington, Charles Johnson, Lulu Illiff, Mary Townsley, William Johnson, Dorothy, Bessie and Ruth Johnson, minors, and Ella Johnson, guardian of the minor defendants.

Plaintiff claims sole ownership of the property, the title being derived from a deed recorded February 26, 1920, executed by George and John Johnson.

According to the petition, through an inadvertance, there was but one witness to the signature and acknowledgment of the grantors, this defect putting a cloud on the title. Defendants have no claim on the property and plaintiff asks that they be barred from interest in the real estate. Miller and Finney are plaintiff's attorneys.

WOMEN'S CLUB, OLDEST IN COUNTRY, CELEBRATES

The Xenia Woman's Club celebrated its sixtieth anniversary Thursday, April 28, with a noon luncheon followed by a literary program.

Mrs. Kinney, president emeritus, acted as hostess and presided on this memorable occasion. Twenty-eight of the thirty active members and ten associate members were present and were seated at two long tables extending the length of two rooms.

During the luncheon, Miss MacCracken offered a toast to Mrs. Kinney in which she paid her a high tribute as the embodiment of the club's highest ideals. She included Miss Allen in her toast, referring to her devotion to the club. Mrs. Kinney responded in an appropriate manner and then proposed a toast to the club bride-elect, Miss Margaret Kelly, presenting her with a corsage bouquet.

The literary program was opened by the reading of letters from former members, by Mrs. H. H. Eavey, after which Mrs. A. S. Frazer read "A History of the Club."

Several distinguished guests, who had visited the club in recent years, were then introduced, each appearing in a curtained frame, while a poem or some quotations were read in their honor by Mrs. William M. Wilson, Miss Hagar and the Misses Flynn. Those revisiting the club were: Helen of Troy, represented by Mrs. Ruthrauf; Dante, by Mrs. J. P. White; Goethe's Marguerite, by Mrs. Spencer Shank; Mary, Queen of Scots, by Mrs. C. S. Frazer; Fanny Burney, by Mrs. Paul Espey; Lafayette by Mrs. Howard Little; Marquise de la Tour du Pin by Mrs. Magruder; Priscilla Alden, by Mrs. C. L. Darlington.

The musical program was then given:

(10) "Ah, Love But a Day."
Mrs. William J. Cherry

The accompanists were Miss Moorehead and Mrs. Ruthrauff.

Several scenes from "The Rivals" were then presented in costume, an introduction being given by Dr. Bertha Trebein Flynn. The players acquitted themselves well and Sheridan's sparkling comedy was greatly enjoyed. Those taking the parts were:

Mrs. Malaprop—Miss Allen.
Miss Lydia Languish, her niece—Mrs. Patterson.
Lucy, her maid—Miss Moorehead.
Sir Anthony Absolute—Miss Elwell.
Captain Jack Absolute, his son—Mrs. James Wilson III.
Fag, his servant—Miss Mary Little.

Those attending from a distance were: Mrs. William H. Kenyon, New York City; Mrs. Joseph Littell, Indianapolis; Mrs. John C. Munger, Pasadena, Calif.; Mrs. Proudfit, Cambridge, Ohio; Miss Santmyer, New York City.

The rooms were filled with beautiful flowers, yellow being the predominating color. C. K. S.

LEGG-COWAN NUPTIALS SOLEMNIZED ON THURSDAY

With charming simplicity, the marriage of Miss Lucille Legg, daughter of Mrs. Dora M. Legg, W. Main St., and Mr. Carl T. Cowan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Cowan, Home Ave., was solemnized at the Friends Church, the Rev. Russell Burkett, officiating, Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

A large assembly of relatives and friends of the couple witnessed the ceremony. The church altar was filled with palms and potted greenery, combined with snapdragons in various hues. The Anderson Flower Shop effectively decorated the chancel.

Strains of the Lohengrin wedding march played by Miss Mabel Peelle, Wilmington, marked the entrance of the bridal party. Miss Legg and her maid, Miss Helen Peelle, Wilmington, walked down one aisle and Mr. Cowan and his groomsman, Mr. Freeland Jennings, Dayton, the other.

The bride's frock was of navy and poudre blue crepe, simply designed with full sleeves, pleated ruffles and bolero effect. Her hat was also of poudre blue and she carried Madame Butterfly roses and delphinium.

Miss Peelle wore orchid georgette, trimmed in fringe. Her hat was also of orchid shade and she carried Columbia roses.

The four members of the bridal party met at the altar for the single ring ceremony.

Fifty relatives and friends were received at the Legg home, after the church ceremony. Pink sweet peas were used throughout the rooms and this color predominated in the appointments of the luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Cowan left Thursday evening by motor, for a weeks' trip. On their return they will reside in the Adair Apartments, W. Market St., this city. Mr. Cowan is employed as salesman with the Holland Furnace Co., Dayton. His bride is operator at the beauty parlor at the Jobe Brothers Store. She is a graduate of the class of 1923, Wilmington High School and Mr. Cowan graduated the same year from Central High School, Xenia.

Mr. Isadore Hyman has been confined to his home on E. Market St., several days with an attack of quinsy.

Mrs. Lilly Stevenson, of Xenia, and Miss Mattie Williams, Jamestown, are expected to arrive home Friday from Melbourne, Fla., where they spent the winter.

WOMEN OF DISTRICT ATTEND EPISCOPAL MEET

One hundred and fifty women of the Women's Auxiliary, of the Diocese of Southern Ohio, Dayton District, heard a message from far-off Alaska, brought by Deaconess Harriet M. Bedell, of Stephen's Village, near the Arctic Circle, at the district convention at Christ Episcopal Church, this city, Wednesday.

Members of the society from Cincinnati, Dayton, Troy, Piqua, Middletown, Waynesville, London, Chillicothe, Washington C. H., Wilmington, Jamestown, Springfield, and other cities in this part of the state attended interesting sessions in the morning and afternoon.

Miss Bedell's address featured the afternoon session. She is Deaconess of the Episcopal Church, educating the Eskimo children in the Far North, at St. Andrew's Mission School where she is the only white person in the region.

Stephen's Village is wholly a native settlement, located on the border of the Land of the Midnight Sun, in summer it has light through the twenty-four hours of each day, the sun setting at half past eleven and rising again soon after midnight. Though so close to the Arctic Circle, during the brief summer the temperature frequently goes as high as eighty degrees, the snow melts, the ice breaks up and it is then, with navigation along the Yukon open for a brief period, that the deaconess has her short contact with the outside world. Then it is that Bishop Rowe, the missionary bishop of the Episcopal Church pays his annual visit, supplies are carried in, and she learns what has happened during the past year.

Gardens flourish then in this outpost of civilization, potatoes, cauliflower, beets, lettuce and beautiful flowers appear above the ground—the hot sun having melted the earth for a space of three feet below the surface. Mosquitos swarm about also, and netting is necessary about beds at night as in the tropical lands of the far south.

Then summer passes, the days grow shorter until finally a period of darkness arrives and it is dark throughout the twenty-four hours, with the temperature down to sixty-five degrees below zero, and all travel is by dog sled.

It is among these conditions that the Deaconess is carrying on the work that has been intrusted to her. During the long winter she makes frequent trips to the neighboring villages in which the natives have housed themselves until the passing of the severe weather; and on these trips she journeys by sledge, camps at night along the trails wrapped in blankets and buried beneath the snow for warmth. Her story of her adventures reads like a romance of the Arctics.

The district meeting opened at 10:30 with a communion service in charge of the Rev. Mr. Shaffer, of Dayton and Waynesville parishes, assisted by the Rev. Phil Porter, Dayton. A business session followed, with the address of the new district president, Miss Catherine Morrison, Cincinnati, at 11:25. Miss Morrison described the work being done by the auxiliary over the district.

A talk by Mrs. Mark L. Mitchell, Cincinnati, in charge of the supply depot of the district followed. Mrs. Cleveland Benedict, Cincinnati, told of the united thank-offering, made by members of the society and which takes care of 179 missionaries all over the world.

The noonday prayer service was in charge of the Rev. Mr. Fisher, Springfield. Luncheon was served in the parish house, by women of the Lutheran Church.

The afternoon session opened with an officers' conference and roll call. Resolutions were adopted, including one with reference to a collection to aid the work of Deaconess Bedell.

"The Book of Remembrance" in which the names of all deceased members of the diocese who have done some noteworthy work are inscribed, was exhibited at the meeting by Mrs. Judith Braxton Colston, Cincinnati, who has charge of the valuable book.

The session closed with the singing of a hymn at 4 o'clock.

CEDARVILLE CHURCH CHOIR IS APPRECIATED

The choir of First Presbyterian Church, Cedarville, with its leader, Mrs. Mildred Foster, Yellow Springs, and pianist, Miss Alberta Hemphill, Cedarville College student, was honored with a congregational dinner in the church parlors, Wednesday evening. The honored guests of the evening included Mr. George Cresswell, who has served in the choir fifty years and is still faithful to the organization.

Covers were laid for thirty members of the choir, and with the members of the congregation, about eighty-five people were in attendance. The tables were centered with bouquets of purple and white lilacs and narcissus. A tempting two-course dinner was served.

Judge S. C. Wright, Xenia, as chairman of the congregation, presided during the after-dinner program. Impromptu talks were made including utterances of appreciation by the choir members.

After dinner, the assembly adjourned to the church auditorium where the Rev. W. P. Harriman, pastor, presented stereopticon slides of hymns, which were sung by the congregation. Several talks were given and a prayer service held.

Mrs. John Gardner, Cincinnati, enjoyed a short visit this week with Mr. and Mrs. George C. Stokes, E. Church St.

Mrs. Mary M. Meredith, N. King St., returned Monday from California, where she spent the winter months. Mrs. Mary Little Dice remained in the West for a longer visit and Mrs. H. H. Eavey, returned home previously. Miss Sarah B. Hager, the fourth member of the party has been visiting in Chicago, enroute home.

TWO IMPORTANT TALKS GIVEN AT D. A. R. MEETING.

Mrs. H. C. Messenger opened her home on N. King St., Wednesday afternoon to Catherine Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, for one of the most delightful meetings of the chapter's year.

Mrs. William Magee Wilson's presence, after her trip abroad, brought great pleasure to the members. Mrs. Wilson told in her interesting manner of the Limitation of Arms Conference at Geneva, which she attended. She described the representatives attending from the largest of the twenty-seven or more countries, and gave a clear insight into the international session.

Mrs. A. C. Messenger, state chairman of national defense, gave a most forceful exposition of the dangers of socialistic propaganda and named many of its leaders who have in the past been considered leading American citizens, and who are now seeking to destroy the foundations of the government.

Speaking of James Adams' demand that the United States disarm as an example to other nations. Mrs. Messenger asked why Russia, with the largest standing army in the world, did not first disarm as an example to other countries. "Without order there is no liberty. There must be preparedness to keep order," Mrs. Messenger said. She declared that the Daughters could be counted on in any emergency and that a great deal of help was expected of the organization to combat the propaganda being spread.

A vote of thanks was extended Mrs. Messenger for her splendid address by the society. Mrs. Malone, a guest from Jonathan Dayton Chapter, told of the work of that chapter against socialistic propaganda.

A general subscription to the Mississippi Flood relief fund was voted by the members. Refreshments were served during the social hour. Mrs. Messenger had the assistance of Mrs. A. C. Messenger, Mrs. C. R. Hinkle and Mrs. R. O. Wead.

FIRST U. P. SOCIETY MEETS WEDNESDAY.

The bright, beautiful afternoon of Wednesday had the effect of attracting a large number of members of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First U. P. Church, to the home of Mrs. J. P. White, S. Detroit St.

Mrs. E. C. Moorman presided and requested that all engage in silent prayer for the Mississippi Valley flood sufferers and for others in recent calamities. Mrs. Edwin Galloway closed the period with prayer.

The program of the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. J. P. White, and was taken from the study book, "Moslem Women." She first exhibited a well-executed map of the country where Mohammedanism prevails and presented different phases of the subject. Those engaged in the latter exercises were Mrs. Magruder, Mrs. E. C. Carruthers, Mrs. M. A. Hagler, Mrs. Mary Dean and Miss Mary Turner.

An interesting feature of the exercises was a dialogue, by Mrs. J. P. White, representing a missionary and Mrs. W. J. Cherry, a young Moslem woman. The argument closed with the courteous young woman under conviction but not conversion, yet promising to study the subject further.

A devotional period followed, conducted by Miss Mary Turner. Responses to roll call were made with items taken from the study book and prepared by Mrs. J. F. Hutchison. After a short business session, the meeting adjourned, repeating the Mizpah prayer, Genesis 31-49.

Opera Beckons Kansas Girl, Namesake of Famous Melba

Eighteen years ago the baby girl born to the Alter family of Wichita, Kan., was named Melba. Today she's a singer on the New York stage, and a career rivaling that of the original Melba seems possible.

By ELMER CLARK,
International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK.—You've all heard of Montmorency Archibald Smith, who turned out to be a teamster?

Well, this is the same kind of a story with a different slant.

When a girl was born to the Alter family, in Wichita, Kansas, eighteen years ago, she was christened Melba.

Today she is a singer in a New York revue and an opera career promises to become a reality.

Learned men scoff at the idea of a name influencing the abilities of the person who bears it. Nevertheless, while still in high school in Wichita Miss Alter competed in the Kansas State Singing Contest, the Mid-West Contest and the South-Western Singing Contest, and won first prize in all three!

She continued her musical education in New York, adding dancing, Italian, French and German to her studies. At a recent party she was honored with an invitation to sing a duet with Beniamino Gigli, opera tenor. Duet over, Gigli said:

"She sings with the voice of an European and the charm of an American. Her future is worth of attention."

And so the little girl may fulfill the desires of her mother, who, having once heard the Australian songbird sing, named her daughter after her and prayed that the baby might some day sing like her ideal.

AGED NUN PERFORMS DUTIES OF CONVENT FROM INVALID'S BED

COLUMBUS, O., April 28.—An eighty-nine-year-old nun is carrying out the duties of superior of the Convent of the Good Shepherd here from her sick bed. She is Mother Mary St. Agnes, confined to her bed for the last two years.

The Mother Superior has been ill for the last five years—but illness has not stopped her from pushing forward in the work of trying to put women and girls on the right path—has not weakened her will and courage to carry on until the end.

From a bed in a small, undecorated room, save for flowers and bare-walled but for a crucifix, she signs checks, looks after correspondence and all executive work brought before her as she did ten years ago when she first took the desk as head of the convent.

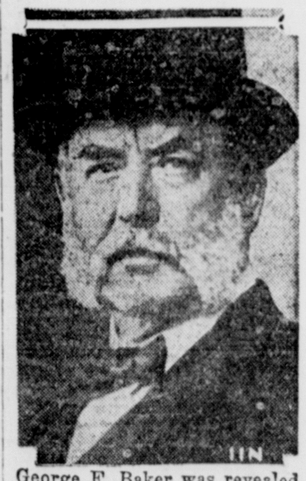

She tells rather shyly of how she made the swaddling clothes for a baby boy who later became president of the United States and chief justice of the United States—William Howard Taft.

When the convent was established more than ten years ago Mother Mary St. Agnes, with five sisters, did needlework in order to keep up the expenses of the convent. It was thus that she became an expert needlewoman and made clothes for the president to be.

Mother Mary St. Agnes is one of the nationally recognized figures in the Catholic sisterhoods of the United States. In her early years she came to the United States from Germany and settled with her parents at Louisville, Ky. She entered a convent in 1856.

She helped found the convent of Good Shepherd at Louisville and Cincinnati.

OPERA IN ESPERANTO

At a recital in New York the other evening, Clyde Burrows, baritone, sang Gretchaninoff's "The Steppe" in Esperanto. He sang other songs in Russian, German, Latin and English, but the Eperanto number is desirving of special attention.

Here, perhaps, is a solution for the problem of the language of operas. Those Americans who feel that operas ought to be sung in this country in an understandable language and those who feel that English is entirely unsuited to that purpose might meet on the common ground of Esperanto. Of course that would require learning Esperanto, which many of us so far have neglected to do. Yet that would be considerably easier than learning all the languages in which operas are ever sung, which seems to be the only other alternative if one must know what all the singing is about.

"THE SOUL OF WIT"

The world is in a hurry: please be brief.

Poor terminal facilities for authors and speakers often nullify all their excellent wisdom. A man may possess all kinds of useful knowledge, but fail in "discerning when to have done."

Brevity is the touchstone of success in any field. You may offend your customer, your reader or your hearer in one respect and please him in another. But if you tire him with your tediousness, you lose him altogether.

The newspaper leads the style today in pith and cogency and has educated the public to the expectation of receiving much in little. The well-executed cartoon will impart a whole philosophy of life at a glance, or provide silent comment on current events worth a column of words.

Brevity is the soul of wit. Yet they who have wit, or think they have, are in special danger of saying too much. Some one has said: "It is better to say nothing and be thought a fool than to open the mouth and dispel all doubt."

KELLYGRAMS

by FRED C KELLY

WHEN PLEASING YOURSELF PLEASE OTHERS

A woman novelist a year or so ago decided that she had enough money to treat herself to the luxury of writing something to please herself.

Tired of preparing novels to meet the taste of the public, she was willing to sacrifice a few months or a year of her time with no hope of much money return from her work.

But the novel which she wrote to suit herself, was not only declared by critics to be the best thing she had done, but had a much larger sale than anything she had written before.

Many other writers have had similar experiences. H. G. Wells once told me that he wrote his Outline of History solely because he felt that it would be a contribution which would give him personal satisfaction. He was astonished when the book brought him a fortune.

I imagine that nearly every great piece of literature has been done more because the author couldn't resist writing it than because he thought the public would like it.

Probably what is true of writing is equally true of conversation. You may fit your talk to the company you're in; but unless you yourself are interested, you are sure to be dull company. Otherwise you are not natural. In other words, you are not being yourself. Talk that springs from true convictions is interesting because an honest piece of goods. That which comes from a mere feeling that one should say the proper thing is of poor quality because spurious. The reason so many society folk are stupid company is because their conversation is artificial. They have no genuine feeling about what they are saying.

I remember the one time I ever talked with Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth. Not three minutes were necessary to learn the secret of the charm of her conversation.

This was at a small social gathering. Several women were standing about uttering inane comments and bits of small talk that didn't mean anything, and didn't interest anybody. But what do you suppose Mrs. Longworth and I talked about? Mainly about the difficulty of learning to stand on ones' head! That was a subject that happened to interest her at the moment and therefore it was what she started to talk about.

Because she was being natural rather than artificial, she made everybody about her feel comfortable. Everybody likes her because she is always herself.

There you have the secret of being interesting.

Be yourself!

The Theatre

Earl Williams, pioneer of the film stars, died at his home in Los Angeles, Monday. He was stricken with bronchial pneumonia last week. At 11:30 a. m., Monday, he suffered a sudden relapse and sank into a coma which ended in his death a few hours later.

Williams began his screen career a score of years ago with the old Vitagraph company and for years was an idol of the screen. He was born in Sacramento, Calif.

Scores of expensive automobiles lined the streets near his home as the elite of picturedom tendered their sympathies to the widow, formerly Miss Florine Walz. Many of the celebrities came in movie makeup, direct from the studios where they were working. In addition to his widow and three-year-old daughter, Joan Constant, Constance Talmadge, and Irving Thalberg, director were at the bedside when death came.

• • •

The history of Williams' rise in the motion picture world is almost a history of the motion picture industry itself. After a short stage career, begun with a stock company in 1901, in New Orleans, and in which he toured the country with Henry Dixey, Mary Manner-ing, Helen Ware, George Beban, and other oldtime favorites, Williams entered the screen work with the old Vitagraph company. He played serials at first and rose to almost instant popularity as the dashing, romantic and handsome hero. He was one of the real stars of the early day pictures.

A sensational court trial in which the beautiful Roma Raymond received a large judgment against Williams for breach of promise, probably stopped the actor from becoming the most noted of all motion picture actors. He continued in the pictures after the trial, but the nature of the testimony introduced by Miss Raymond hurt his box office popularity. He was playing second leads at the time of his last illness.

Woman, as Warden, Brings "Mother-Touch" to Prison

Mrs. G. A. Waters, in charge of the Granite Reformatory at Granite, Okla., is the only woman warden in the United States. She believes that her wards need mothering more than anything else, and is mingling affection with prison discipline.

GRANITE, Okla. (I.I.N Special)—The only warden of her sex in the United States has brought a woman's touch inside the walls of Granite Reformatory.

The woman is Mrs. G. A. Waters, who succeeded her late husband in her present post.

When she took over the reformatory she discovered that eighty-five per cent of her charges came from broken homes. In light of the fact she saw her duty differently than most wardens see theirs.

She turned what was then a "jail house" into what is now a "prison home." Kindness is mingled with discipline and the Golden Rule has replaced the iron hand.

"But I do not let my sentiment interfere with my judgment," says Mrs. Waters. "I enforce a rigid dicipline, but it is based on one theory. It is this: when the wrongdoer sees his fault and acknowledges the justice of the punishment, he is punished."

Here is how Mrs. Waters brought about her "prison home" idea:

She organized athletic and dancing exhibitions.

She organized a library for her "boys" and gave them greater freedom in reading.

She organized quartets and an orchestra. Sunday afternoon "sings" were instituted.

She bettered the recreational equipment. The ten acres within the prison now have a baseball diamond, a football field, volley ball and horseshoe pitching courts.

Her greatest achievement is less tangible. That is the infiltration of her own personality into the prison system. She has a kind word for every boy she meets. She leads them in singing at church services. She keeps her evenings open so that her wards can bring their complaints to her. She receives them alone—without the usual guard. She talks to them as a friend, not as a jailer. Some have heard their first words of motherly counsel for years from her lips.

One boy, as he was led away after a talk with her, asked his guard:

"Say, when will she let me talk to her again?"

THE FIRST TOOTH

And is this tooth your very own?
And have you done a thing so clever?
And are you then so nearly grown?
Well, did you ever, did you ever!

Does Mother give you all the credit,
And tell the news, and 'phone, and spread it?
Oh—you have known it quite a while!
And is that why you crow and smile?

No joke like this was known before!
With folks exclaiming from the floor,
And making such a great to-do,
I think I'd feel like laughing, too!

Many Minds

SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"Religion has the fight of its life just ahead. Make no mistake about that, and the fight is not between the modernist and the fundamentalist. That is merely a rear-guard action. The real fight is between religion and sheer religion, and in that conflict religion must defend, alike for thought and life, the proposition that the things which are seen are temporal, as science says, but that the things which are unseen are eternal."—Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

MRS. HALL: "Oh, my dear! A terrible thing has happened. John just phoned and said he was bringing guests home for supper, and there's nothing in the house to eat."

Mrs. Brown: "That's easy! Let me tell you a favorite dish that can be readily put together, and is a whole meal in itself:"

VEGETABLES BAKED WITH LIVER

Two pounds beef liver, three slices bacon, one large onion, sliced, twelve small potatoes, one tablespoon drippings, one-fourth cup flour, one cup stewed tomatoes, two cups celery, diced, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-half cup hot water.

Add the onions and the celery to the hot drippings. Cook slightly in a pan that has a tight cover. Sprinkle the liver with flour and lay in the pan. Arrange the bacon over the top, add the hot water and the salt, and bake, covered, in a 450 degree F. oven for one-half hour.

Next put in potatoes, pared and halved. Cover and bake until potatoes are done; remove lid and brown the bacon. Dish the meat and vegetables, add to the liquid in the pan the rest of the flour, stir until smooth and add the tomatoes. Season and serve the sauce in a separate dish.

How to Achieve Beauty

EYE AREA SHOULD BE TREATED

The eye area, which includes eyelids, the flesh at the side of the eyes where the crowsfeet so often become apparent, and the soft half moons just below the eyes, is the most delicate and important part of your beauty, and should receive a generous portion of the care you bestow upon your face.

To avoid and correct crowsfeet, and also to keep the fine skin of the eyelids and the half-moons under the eyes in good condition, the daily use of a generous application of your anti-wrinkle cream is very important. In working your cream in around your eyes always begin at the inner corner of the eyelid with a light, gentle, rotary motion over the eyelid, then work out toward the temple and down under the eye toward the nose. Never work in the opposite direction.

Hollows and circles under the eyes are usually the result of poor circulation of the blood and these can be helped greatly and even eliminated if you will be faithful in your efforts to stir circulation at this point by applying soothing compresses to the eyes, which I spoke about in yesterday's article. Astringent pads placed beneath the eyes and the consistent practice of the eye exercises which I spoke about earlier in the week, are also of prime importance.

Every woman should possess, in addition, an eye cup, special feeding cream for the eye area, and an astringent for under the eyes to keep the skin well toned and fed.

A more elaborate eye treatment given occasionally by a beauty specialist is very refreshing, and if you live where you can take advantage of this, by all means do so, say once a month, if possible. As in addition to the soothing lotions, creams and astringents which you can apply yourself, the beauty specialist applies an electrode filled with violet ray, which is most soothing and stimulating. The area surrounding the eyes is also cupped by electricity to stir up the circulation. After a treatment of this sort your eyes will be brightened and strengthened to a really remarkable degree.

Keeping HEALTHY

by Dr. A. F. Currier ©EFS

HEMOPHILIA

H. G.: I am a "bleeder" and have been since my tenth birthday, though much better than formerly, and if I cut myself now the bleeding is not excessive nor persistent.

My gums also are spongy and bleed, and I would like to go to a dentist and be treated for pyorrhea. What would you advise me to do?

Hemophilia is not such a rare disease. I have seen quite a number of cases in the course of my medical life, and they are always a source of great trouble and anxiety. The disease is one which affects the composition of the blood itself. It means that the blood is deficient in fibrin, which is a substance which is inactive while the blood is circulating in the blood vessels, but active when it escapes from these vessels to the external world or to one of the cavities of the body.

It is through the energy of fibrin that escaped blood coagulates or clots, and a clot sealing the opening in a ruptured blood vessel is nature's measure for arresting the bleeding.

It is a principle that must always be remembered—that blood is a vital substance. Loss of a sufficient quantity of it must inevitably mean loss of life, and Nature's plan is to conserve it to the greatest possible extent by means of fibrin and the clot which it produces.

One who has hemophilia has no such safeguard, or has it only to a slight degree.

When bleeding takes place in such a person it continues indefinitely, possibly until death has occurred and attempts to stop it are often disappointing and futile.

People are born with it and it is very difficult or impossible to get rid of.

It is more common in women and girls than in men and boys, and it may be acquired by habits and occupations which conduce to the thinning of the blood. Sometimes there are families which are predisposed to this disease, and it continues to recur in their members generation after generation.

Infants frequently suffer with it, even the newly-born, and may bleed to exhaustion from the nose, mouth or rectum, or into the tissues and cavities of the body.

Children may show their predisposition to this disease by bleeding profusely after an attack of scarlet fever or chickenpox, after vaccination, the extraction of a tooth, or a pinch or scratch.

Hemorrhage in bleeders may be internal or external, and is particularly prone to affect the mucous membranes, occurring often without any justifiable cause.

It may also occur in the joints and cavities of the body or into the bowel, the bladder or the brain. It may not occur until after a surgical operation; in fact, the victim may be unaware that he has such a trouble, and it may be discovered only as the surgeon finds the difficulty of checking it almost insuperable.

It is revealed in many cases for the first time at the end of childbirth, when it may come in an appalling volume, which not infrequently ends life in a very few minutes.

People sometimes recover from these hemorrhages quickly, and this is especially the case with women or they may remain permanently anemic. One who is aware that he has such a weakness should always be cautious about exposing himself to blows, bruises or even violent exercise.

It is not well for bleeders to marry if they are aware of their weakness, for they may transmit it to their children, if they should have them.

Preparations of lime have been in vogue in recent years, in the treatment of bleeding sickness. Some have claimed good results from them, others have observed no beneficial results.

Substances which are in common use for the arrest of bleeding are ergot, adrenalin, thyroid extract, cotton root and various preparations of iron.

It is said that the most effective substance is blood serum from the human being, the horse or the rabbit.

The simplest way to stop bleeding when it is at the surface of the body is by pressure—pressure of the finger or any convenient compressing instrument.

The trouble usually is that people are so excited when they see blood flowing that they lose self-control and do not apply pressure where it will have the best mechanical advantage.

Ask Dr. Currier that medical question that has been puzzling you. Confine your letter to fifty words and send stamped, addressed envelope for reply. He cannot, of course, make individual diagnoses, and he reserves the right to decide as to the propriety of queries.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, April 28.—Those who doubt the softening influence of modern civilization have but to step over to the old marketing district on Third avenue and interview Otto Schmidt who, as the dramatic editor of a sidewalk horseradish stand, has devoted twenty-five years of his life to the outdoor retailing of this pungent and racy root.

Full of the misery of memory Otto sighs for the good old days when strong men of the metropolis could take half a teaspoonful of the emphatic condiment without shedding a single tear. A dose of that sort today, he tells you, would drive the average man into hysterics.

"As you see," says Otto," I sell my horseradish in bottles. I have to do the grating myself because the modern housewife objects to the labor. It was my wife who gave me the idea. She used to grate her own horseradish. One day she told me that unless I brought it to her prepared I'd have to worry along with catsup. I figured that if my own wife felt that way about it, a lot of other women certainly must share her idea. Business has tripled since I switched to the bottle trade; but I belong back in the days of ungrated roots, and I'll never get used to the soft, bottled horseradish ideas of this generation."

With most of the city's buildings equipped with revolving doors, something will have to be done to curb the exuberance of the young man with the taffy colored hair and the limp cigarette who steps into the compartment ahead of you and proceeds to squander the last ounce of his vibrant and youthful strength in spining the door with such velocity that you are forced against your will to make several round trips before you can emerge with the least degree of safety.

No one should exceed the speed limit in a revolving door.

BUCKEYE LEAGUE IN SECOND WEEK; LOOP LEADERS MEET HERE

Interesting contests are in prospect when the Buckeye League opens its second week Sunday afternoon with games scheduled at Xenia, Harshmanville and Beavertown.

Xenia Reserves, with one league victory recorded, meet a worthy opponent in Harshmanville at Washington Park. These two clubs have always engaged in close games in meetings in the past.

Harshman defeated the Dayton police last Sunday in easy fashion while the Reserves were breezing along to a 6 to 1 victory over Osborn.

Beavertown Reds will encounter the Osborn Miami Cements at Beavertown. Both teams are about evenly matched.

Bellbrook and the Dayton Police will clash on the Harshmanville diamond.

All league games will begin at 3 o'clock.

CENTRAL GOLFERS PRACTICE FOR TEAM

Students of Central High School, aspiring to berths on the golf team being formed, enjoyed their first practice round on the Community Club course in Dayton Tuesday afternoon. The student golfers were taken to Dayton by Coach Victor Kolb.

The long and difficult outside course was played but remarkably good scores were turned in, considering the fact it was the first practice of the season.

Present indications are that the high school golf team will be composed of Collins Lorimer, Charles Karch, Abe Rakoff and Leighou Little, with William Clemans and Max Marshall in reserve.

Offers for inter-city matches have been received from Troy and Piqua High Schools, but cannot be accepted unless arrangements can be made to stage the matches on the Troy and Piqua links or on a neutral course.

Golf is the newest sport at Central High and is gradually gaining in popularity.

Irvine, Cedarville, eighty-five, and W. A. Miller, Sr., Xenia, seventy-seven.

MAGNATE DIES

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 28.—Otto Borchert, owner of the Milwaukee American Association baseball club, is dead today at the age of fifty-three. Borchert died suddenly last night while speaking at an Elks' banquet. Efforts to revive him proved futile. The opening game with Toledo, scheduled for today, has been called off.

HOW TO PLAY BASEBALL

"Play The Batters"

AS TOLD BY STARS OF THE GAME

By FRANK FRISCH

Second Baseman and Captain of World's Champions, St. Louis Cardinals.

Second base in my opinion, with the exception of shortstop, is the most difficult position on the infield to play. I say difficult because of the number of plays with which a second baseman must acquaint himself.

In order to know how to play the second sack the second baseman should know how to make the double play. Second base is known as the keystone sack from which position the majority of double plays are made. For example:

With a runner on first base, the batter hits the ball to either the third baseman or shortstop. The second baseman should run over to cover second base as quickly as possible, so as not to take the throw from either the third baseman or shortstop on the run, enabling him to make a sure catch. The second baseman should always make sure of his play at second base, FIRST.

Then when the putout is made at second base, the second baseman should keep his right foot on the base to steady himself, and then throw to first base, completing the double play. Keeping his right foot on base gives the second baseman more speed and accuracy in his throw to first base.

The most important thing a second baseman should know is how to play the different batters. For instance: With a left-handed batter at the plate, pitcher throws either a curve or slow ball. The second baseman should be on the move toward first base as soon as the pitcher delivers the ball. When the fast ball is pitched the second baseman should play his natural position.

When a low or curve ball is pitched to a right-handed hitter, the second baseman should move toward second base, and, if a fast ball is thrown, move a little toward right field.

Another important thing for the second baseman to study is the fast and slow men. This enables him to know whether to hurry a play or to take his time. When the second baseman knows a fast man is up he should play in a little on the diamond. On fly balls hit over the infield, out toward right or center field, the second baseman should run out as fast as possible with his back to the diamond and when directly under the ball turn and face the diamond, making his catch sure. When almost certain he can take any fly balls he should yell. It is very important for the second baseman to call for any safe fly ball.

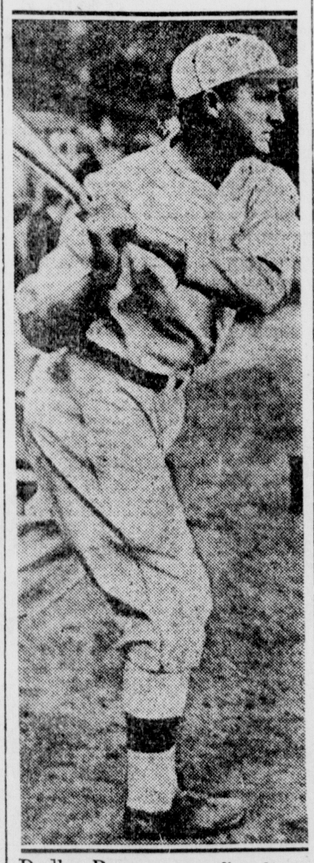

NIECE OF GREENE COUNTIAN KILLED

Mrs. Minnie L. Davis, Burlington Pike, has received word of the death of her niece, Miss Helen Lampe, who was killed Easter Sunday, while on an outing in the mountains near Los Angeles, Cal., when the car in which she was an occupant fell over a cliff.

Miss Lampe and companions were returning from a week's outing in the mountains, when the axle of the auto was broken in an accident and it fell over a cliff when the driver lost control. The other girl in the car was killed and the driver seriously hurt.

Miss Lampe has often visited here and has a number of relatives in this vicinity. She was the daughter of Fred Lampe, formerly of Greenville, O.

PAIR ARRESTED AFTER AUTO TURNS OVER ON DAYTON PIKE

Horace Smith, 25, and William Fenner, 25, both of Dayton, returning home from a visit to Antioch College, had a thrilling escape from serious injury when their coach left the Dayton Pike and turned over several times at the top of Lucas Hill at 1 o'clock Thursday morning.

The machine crashed into two posts and was wrecked, its occupants receiving slight cuts and bruises. The car, owned and driven by Smith, was going toward Dayton.

Patrolmen Ed Craig and Charles Thompson, investigating the accident, placed the pair under arrest, and Smith was fined $15 and costs by Mayor John W. Prugh Thursday morning on a charge of reckless driving. He pleaded guilty. No charge was placed against Fenner. Both were held overnight at Police Headquarters.

The auto is thought to have upset when the driver, unfamiliar with the road, attempted to negotiate the sharp curve at a high rate of speed.

Hailing a passing car, the Dayton men were driven to Xenia. Returning to the scene of the accident with a wrecking car of of Swigart Bros. garage to tow the damaged machine into Xenia for repairs, the pair found the officers waiting for them.

DENIES REPORT OF ALIMONY PAYMENT

NEW YORK, Apr. 28.—Col. Edward C. Carrington, who was recently divorced from his wife in Chicago, denied today that he had settled $100,000 upon Mrs. Carrington as reported at the time of the action.

"The truth of the matter is that Mrs. Carrington waived and refused all alimony and all rights of dower and all claims upon my property. She realized no cash from the settlement. She has told friends of mine that shortly she will marry my brother, Campbell Carrington," he said.

GOING------GOING------GONE

When Horace E. Dodge, scion of the millionaire automobile family, pictured in happy mood on the left, landed at San Francisco, reporters and cameramen greeted him with requests for statements as to his reported reconciliation with his wife, and for pictures. He proved a reluctant subject, broke cameras, exchanged blows with reporters and was eventually arrested, charged with assault, all the time dodging from photographers. Picture number two shows him coming ashore, and on the right, he is seen being booked at the police station, still hidding from the camera.

GREENE COUNTY'S QUOTA FOR FLOOD FUND NEARLY REACHED

Greene County's quota of the $5,000,000 fund being raised for the relef of flood sufferers in the Mississippi River Valley was almost totally subscribed Thursday, officials said.

V. L. Faires, treasurer of Greene County Chapter, American Red Cross, in charge of the campaign, has sent $1,000 to headquarters of the organization in Washington, D. C. With Xenia City still lacking its full uota, the fund has already reached practically the $1,575 goal set at the beginning of the campaign.

Cedarville, Jefferson and Miami Twps., have reached their goals.

Wilson W. Galloway, Red Cross chairman, made public an open letter to clubs, lodges, business houses and citizens of Xenia, Thursday, appealing for generous support for the fund. The letter follows:

"Xenia, Ohio.
"April 28, 1927.

"You are aware through the newspapers, etc., of the call of President Coolidge for funds to be given immediately through the American Red Cross for the aid of the Mississippi flood sufferers. Greene County Chapter is at work endeavoring to raise this money.

"The county quota is approximately $1,600, which is quite low considering the ability of our people financially. It has been the hope of our Chapter executives that a solicitation will be unnecessary in that the need is sufficient to cause each one to wish to have a part by contribution in alleviating the suffering and minimizing the loss of life. For this reason, we have not called upon individuals nor business houses by solicitation.

"We are taking this occasion, however, to bring the matter to your attention definitely, and would like to request that you take action promptly upon receipt of this communication by making a contribution to this fund. May we not hope that you will be most liberal in your support of this need? You understand, of course, that the local Chapter benefits in no way by this contribution. If Xenia, through its citizens and organizations, will do its part as faithfully and promptly as the outlying districts of the county our goal will be reached by Saturday night.

"Please send your checks today to the chapter treasurer, Vern L. Faires, 9 W. Main St., Xenia, Ohio.

"Very truly yours,
"Wilson W. Galloway,
"Chairman."

WILLIAM LEE EKIN, FORMER XENIAN, IS CLAIMED SUDDENLY

William Lee Ekin, 48, former Xenian and prominent official of the Pennsylvania Railroad, died from a sudden attack of heart trouble in his offices in Chicago, Thursday morning at 10:15 o'clock, brief word to relatives announced.

Mr. Ekin was chief engineer of maintenance of way for the western region of the Pennsylvania Company, with offices in Chicago. He had been located in that city a little more than a year.

Before that time he was located in Harrisburg, Pa., four years, as superintendent of the Philadelphia division of the Pennsylvania lines. Mr. Ekin was connected with the company as superintendent of various branches for the last fourteen years. He became connected with the Pennsylvania company in 1900 after he finished school.

Before being located at Harrisburg, he was superintendent of the Pittsburgh division, with headquarters at Pittsburgh. Previous to that time he was in Logansport, Ind., as superintendent of that division and held superintendent positions at Decatur, Ill., Terre Haute and Logansport, Ind.

Mr. Ekin left Xenia about twenty-five years ago. He was born and reared in this city, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ekin. His marriage to Miss Janet Allison of this city, took place November 4, 1908. They had no children and besides his widow, two brothers, Allison Landaker, Chicago, Ill., Lawrence Landaker, this city and one sister, Mrs. John G. Baldner, also of this city, survive.

Mr. Ekin attended the Xenia public schools, Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, and Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

LEGATION DAMAGED BY FIRE THURSDAY

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Fire this morning gutted the first floor of the Lithuanian legation at 2622 Sixteenth St.

The fact that the minister, M. Kazys Bizauskas, arose at 4:30 a. m., probably saved his life and prevented more extensive damage. The minister was planning to leave at 5 a. m., on a motor trip to Massachusetts and discovered the fire on arising.

Legislature's Clerk

MISS LOUISE SNOW, WHO CLAIMS TO BE ONLY WOMAN LEGISLATIVE CLERK IN THE UNITED STATES.

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

AUSTIN, Texas, Apr. 28.—Texan legislators, meeting for a call session, perceive a spot of brightness in the dull sky of legislative business, in the presence at her desk as chief clerk of the house of representatives, of pretty little Miss Louise Snow, first woman in Texas, if not in the United States, to hold this important post in a state legislature.

Miss Snow is eighteen years old and a co-ed student at the University of Texas. She was elected to the office which she now holds during the closing days of the last session to fill the unexpired term of her predecesor and, like Mrs. Ferguson, former governor of the largest state in the union, sets a new precedent for Texan women engaged in politics. She is believed to be the only woman in the country who holds such a position.

The legislative halls of Texas have, in the past few years, seen many hectic scenes. Women are playing a larger part in state lawmaking there than ever before and the fact that a woman has been chosen for an important post in the lower house is viewed as being especially significant.

PRESIDENT'S SON KEEPS SADDLE SEAT BETTER THAN WALES

WASHINGTON, Apr. 28.—Horseback riding seemingly has an uncontrollable appeal to youth "of the blood." Edward Albert, much sighed-over Prince of Wales, is known to the four corners of the earth for his exploits in horsemanship, and now America's "crown prince," John Coolidge, has turned to the sport for his principal recreation.

John holds his mount much better than the son of the House of Windsor, bu it must be said in fairness to the Prince that young Coolidge does not undertake the hazardous steeple chasing which makes the tumbles of the British heir apparent almost weekly front-page copy.

The son of the President, while in Washington, is a familiar sight to those who patronize the public golf links around which the Potomac Park bridle path runs. Almost every morning he canters through the park accompanied by Lieutenant Joe Mathison, superintendent of the White House stables, or Jim Haley or Russell Wood, secret service operatives.

John's other favorite forms of recreation are tennis and swimming although since his brother Calvin died he has not engagod in them so much.

In college, young Coolidge has not gone out for athelics. He had brief hopes of making the college boxing team but a decisive three-round defeat and much accompanying publicity cooled that ardor.

ADVANCE TIME

Regular bi-monthly meeting of City Commission was moved up to 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, city officials announced.

The meeting was originally scheduled for Thursday night. The afternoon session is expected to be a brief one.

LAUDER IN FILMS

LONDON, April 28.—Sir Harry Lauder has signed a contract to appear in a British film at a salary of $50,000, it was reported today in theatrical circles.

JOHN NORTH GIVEN CONTRACT FOR WORK

John A. North, Xenia plumber, has been awarded the contract by County Commissioners for installation of a hot water system at the Greene County Children's Home. His bid of $914.92 was the lowest of three received.

Contract calls for installation of a No. 1-A. S.-4 Duro Automatic Softener of 600 gallons capacity between two regenerations and No. 200 Hoffman Nuticoil storage heater, with a capacity of 200 gallons per hour, with a thermostat and other incidental equipment.

Jail Yawns

Mae West, star and writer of "Sex," appears in court April 19 for sentence. A jury found the play "tending to corrupt the morals of youth."

JAIL HAS LAST LAUGH

HACKENSACK, N. J.—A year and a half ago Mrs. Marion Brazier sawed her way out of Hackensack county jail, where she was held on a bad check charge, and left behind a note addressed to the chief of police which said, with classic simplicity: "Laugh that off!" The other day Mrs. Brazier was captured in Boston and returned to Hackensack. She was greeted at the jail entrance by a hearty burst of laughter from the assembled jail attendants.

SNYDER TRIAL COSTLY JUMBLE OF "TRAINED SEALS" IS SAID

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

NEW YORK, Apr. 28.—It has taken the defense in the Snyder-Gray murder case an entire week to get a jury that is sufficiently dumb to give the Murder Tandem on trial anything like an even break.

Everybody's been trying to hurry the thing along; but you can't blame Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray for being a bit meticulous. Neither with justification can eminent counsel be censured.

Edgar F. Hazleton, senior solicitor for Mrs. Snyder, boasts that he has won his last eleven murder cases and that he's out to make it an "even dozen."

Hazleton is a former judge. He thinks well of himself and his ability, and his price is scaled to match his robust belief. It is costing relatives of Mrs. Snyder $25,000 for her defense. Her mother already has handed over two savings bank books, one for $3,389 and the other for $4,000, together with two mortgage bonds of $1,000 each. The bonds bear two years accumulated interest.

"And I'll get the other $15,000, I'm certain of that," she says. "My little baby never committed that foul crime and I'm out to free her of the charge."

What Gray's lawyers are getting deponent knoweth not and refuseth to hazard a guess. Gray's wife is heartbroken over her husband's plight, but refuses to be swept off her feet by hysteria. She has declined to sell the little bird-cage cottage in East Orange, where she and her 9-year-old daughter reside. Her husband's counsel will have to line their jeans with jack obtained elsewhere.

"The little home is all the child and I have left on earth," she says. "Why should I sell it? What good would it do?"

GRAY NEAR COLLAPSE

It may be that Gray's mother has supplied the foundation for the defense fund. She is present every day in court and one afternoon a meeting was arranged between her and her son in an anteroom adjoining the prison corridor. It had been a trying morning. Gray hadn't slept the night before. A man in a nearby cell had attempted suicide and his screams made sleep impossible. When Gray saw his mother face to face he rushed into her arms, buried his head on her shoulder and cried like a kid. He's shot to pieces and if he finally goes to the electric chair he'll be half dead before the end comes.

Gauged on a scale running from one to 100, the intelligence of the Snyder-Gray jury can safely be chalked at forty-three and a fraction. It is fitting that the "Great Dumb-Bell Murder" should be tried by a jury of that type. It was a crime conceived and executed within the borders of Moronia and in that domain of the fish-eyed will have its culmination.

Fitting, also, is it, that Ye Editors of the Capital of the Commonplace should have combed the town for Horn-Rim Headliners, temporarily at liberty, to wield erotic Eberhard Fabers for the entertainment and instruction of The Circulation.

The group of Trained Seals embraces moralists, novelists, playwrights, psychologists, psycho-analysts, philosophers and sundry and various literati. At enormous guarantees these Ladies and Gents of the Face Feelers' Union have, in the short space of one week, demonstrated beyond peradventure that, in the lit'ry world at least, Reputation and Ability are no longer on speaking terms.

THEY MISSED THIS ONE

None of the hysterical editors thought of hiring a woman of the underworld to sit in and scrutinize Mrs. Snyder and her Leading Man, dictating her reactions to a member of the staff for presentation in parliamentary language. But it's a safe bet that had any of them done that little thing he'd have more glossy output than, for example, Willie Durant or W. E. Woodward is passing out.

The editor who hired Durant has this to say of the great man in a page advertisement in his paper:

"Perhaps there is not in the whole world another thinker who knows mankind more intimately than does Will Durant, author of 'The Story of Philosophy,' who has been engaged to write a series of articles on the Snyder murder. . . . There will be no Sob Sister gush in what Durant writes, etc., etc."

And then, mark ye, Brethren, what Willie, The Thinker, has to say about Ruth Snyder:

"One can understand how this simple home grew too small for the dreams of Ruth Snyder . . . . The stillness and solitude of the place frightened her."

Wrong as usual, Willie. The only time Ruth Snyder ever had "dreams" was when she went to bed too soon after eating Welsh rabbit; and as for the "solitude of the little home frightening her," listen to this:

The other afternoon after the day's session, a newspaper camera man was posing her for a picture. He is a figety little chap. Mrs. Snyder arrested his energetic hand and said with a smile:

"Don't tremble so! What have you to shake about?"

Further along in his story Socrates the Second has this to say about Judd Gray:

"No doubt he, too, was hungry for romance; selling corsets is a thankless task in this corsetless age."

So much for Will Durant.

ABOUT THE BUNK

W. E. Woodward, known as "Wee Wee" Woodward, is another Great Author turned newspaper man.

"Wee Wee" wrote a book called "Bunk," which paved the way for his life of George Washington, wherein he did all any man could possibly do to tarnish the reputation of the First President.

Brother Woodward's editor blazons the intelligence that Washington's detractor will "debunk" the trial for the customers. There's been too much gush, sap and soft-soap in other murder trials. Read Woodward and encounter the unclad truth!

Thus we have Durant beclouding it and Woodward "debunking" it. And following is a sample of the Woodward process:

"For it must be remembered that Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray are not strangers or chance acquaintances. They have been lovers, and in the hot breath of love have mingled their sighs and kisses. And now they sit in the courtroom icily distant while the lawyers wrangle—and the ghost of the dead husband walks solemnly through this tawdry desolation, the picture wire round his neck and his blackened tongue lolling from his mouth."

Do bunk? Yea, bo! De bunk pure and simple!

PRESENTING PEGGY JOYCE

Peggy Hopkins Joyce, sporting a card of admission, drops into the Press Box now and then, as does Sammy Shipman, who wrote a play called "Crime."

Dave Belasco, with his clerical collar and Old Black Joe shock of white hair, was advertised to be on hand, but as yet hasn't showed. Maybe there's been a washout on the line.

Natacha Rambova, Valentino's grief-stricken spouse, is also "doing" the trial, with a No. 2 Venus instead of an Eberhard-Faber.

D. W. Griffith, movie director and producer, is another "reporter." D. W. wrote "Broken Blossoms," you remember, and that qualifies him to carry a police card.

Rita Weiman, short story scribbler and playwright, appears in the court room daily. Rita wrote the other day: "The Snyder murder is stark realism, naked, bony, hideous."

Rita gets what they call down in Florida "earnest money" for that sort of stuff, so more power to her good, old, right arm. May her muscles hold out till the end!

Maurine Watkins is another member of the Tripe Troupe. Maurine wrote a play now running in New York, called "Chicago," dealing with certain dismal aspects of law and disorder in the City of Ham and Yeggs. What she has to say about Mrs. Snyder and Gray is, therefore, important.

If the Doctor cured little Fido, why not let him operate on Pop?

Justice Scudder won't permit photographers to work in the court-room, so the boys hang outside and are forced to the expedient of taking pictures of the courthouse cat.

The Trained Seals in the Press Box were shown up pretty badly in the deadly monotony of the week taken to select the jury. It requires more than reputation to sit down day after day and bat out a readable yarn on the same old topic. On that assignment every one of the High-Priced Horn-Rims flopped, while every honest-to-goodness reporter made good.

They all got away from scratch on the first day, and it was a little old Manilla pay-envelope staff man, Alfred Segal, on the same paper that Durant is writing for, who pulled the best line of the series.

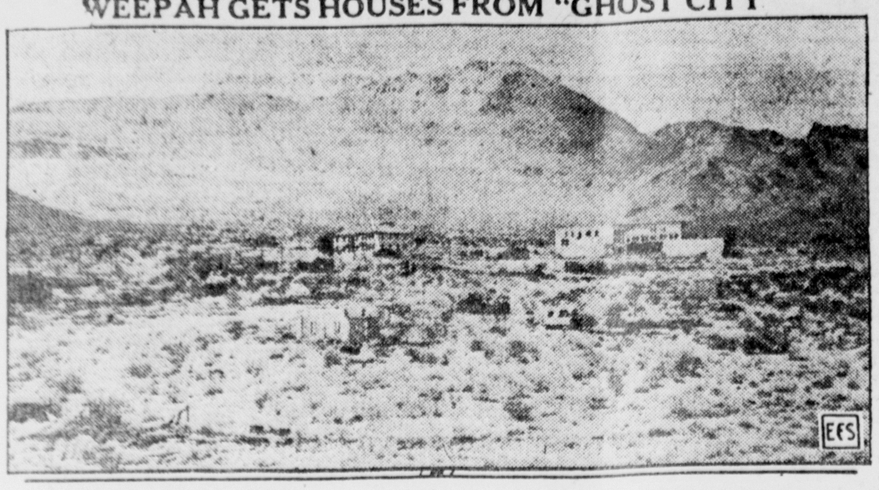

"Monday, April 18," he wrote. "This would have been Ruth Snyder's wash day!"

Heiress Weds

Here's the former Narcissa Vanderlip, daughter of Frank A. Vanderlip, millionaire Wall Street figure, on her wedding day. The bridegroom was Julian Street, Jr., son of the author. The bride is shown in her dress of ivory satin and old lace and a lace tulle veil that her mother wore. Her bouquet was of white iris, white columbine and orange blossoms.

WEEPAH GETS HOUSES FROM "GHOST CITY"

ABANDONED RHYOLITE, FROM WHICH HOUSES ARE BEING MOVED TO WEEPAH

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

WEEPAH, Nev., April 7.—The stampede to Weepah, Nev., with fevered gold hunters on trains, in motor cars and on horse-back, striving for "claims"—is recalling to old-timers a similar nightmare of years ago at Rhyolite, "the ghost city of Nevada," an old mining camp.

At the present time arrangements are being made to rush substantial buildings from Rhyolite and other "ghost cities" of the surrounding desert to Weepah. Sites for gambling palaces, dance halls, and other resorts have been selected, and shacks are being taken from Rhyolite, the deserted.

At one time Rhyolite burst in glory and dazzled the desert with its beauty—but it flickered out when its veins yielded the last ounce of gold.

SEE SEA SERPENTS

VANCOUVER, B. C., Apr. 27.—The North Pacific sea serpent season was officially opened today. Frederick Parnell, of Vancouver, reported that he and his brother had seen two sea serpents each thirty feet long in Howe Sound, off Gibsons Landing, 150 miles west of this place. Fishermen reported seeing the serpents, which, they said, could raise their heads six feet above the surface of the water. Most of the fish are reported to have fled from Howe Sound in fright.

COOLIDGE FAVORS WISCONSIN SUMMER

WASHINGTON, Apr. 28.—President Coolidge's choice of a summer White House has narrowed to three states, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, it was learned here today. For governmental and other reasons it is now unlikely that Mr. Coolidge will go further away from Washington.

The president was understood today to be favorable to Wisconsin, and more particularly to the Lake Geneva section where a palatial estate owned by William Wrigley has been offered him. The place is within three hours motoring distance of Chicago, and abounds with good fishing. No final decision has yet been made.

The Coolidges are expected to leave by the middle of June.

ALLEGED SLAYER IS HELD IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O., April 28.—John Burbridge, alleged slayer of John Compton, Jr., at Chagrin Falls ten days ago, and several suspects in the killing of Fred Hirsch, Ohio Bell Telephone Company repairman, during a holdup last Friday night, were under arrest here today following a police roundup of Cleveland's "roaring third" precinct last night.

Police say Burbridge admitted beating Compton with his fists during a drunken brawl, but denied using his heels.

While the roundup was in progress, Sam Nobile, 33, was shot down by unknown assailants in another part of the city, dying early today in St. Alexis Hospital. Detectives say he was the victim of a "bootleg war." A brother, Louis Nobile, was killed last summer in the same manner.

RIFLE TRAP SHOOTS VICTIM AT STATION

ZANESVILLE, O., April 28.—M. E. Carter, 24, Wheeling, W. Va., is in Bethesda Hospital here, with a bullet wound in his left hip, said by police to have been inflicted by a "trap rifle" in the filling station of S. S. Galloway, Norwich, early today.

According to Galloway, his filling station having been robbed several times during the past winter, he set a rifle trap after the last robbery, aiming the weapon at the door.

Carter gave no explanation of the incident, but asked that R. E. Carter at Wheeling, be notified.

Pimples, Boils, Skin Eruptions

Skilled physicians recognize the apearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S. You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin and makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

S.S.S. is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

You'll soon be hearing it everywhere

FORD COLLECTION OF AMERICANA TO BE HOUSED IN MUSEUM

DETROIT, Apr. 28.—Meet Henry Ford, the collector!

America's first billionaire, known throughout the world as the flivver king, is gathering the greatest collection of Americana in all history.

Ford plans to construct a huge museum near his Dearborn estate to house the collection, so that it may present a permanent record of the social, agricultural, industrial and transportational development of the United States. It will be known as the Ford Museum and will be quite unlike anything else in the world.

One great corner of the Dearborn plant here has been used by Ford as temporary home for his collection. A visitor is staggered by the bewildering variety of articles, gathered from every section of the country. Nothing quite like it has ever been seen beneath a single roof.

The collection varies from the late Tom Thumb's thirty inch cane to an old fashioned sawmill, which was taken apart log by log, board by board, brought into the Ford factory and kept to be reassembled in the museum.

COLLECTION VARIES

A visual history of the automobile industry probably is favored by Ford himself over all the other antiques. The first Ford is there as are many of its brothers and sisters. And all these strange looking and mirth-provoking autocars are in excellent running condition. Ford has seen to that.

The collection of wagons fires the imagination. There is an oxcart with its wheels hammered out of solid oak, its floor and sides held together with wooden pegs. It still operates, although its age is estimated at close to 200 years. There are carriages, barouches, cabs, prairie schooners, of a dozen types and a half dozen huge stage-coaches for which the movies would pay a fortune.

Another section of the collection is devoted to farm implements. There are ploughs in a hundred forms. Several of the grain threshers are as large as locomotives. There are butter-churners, their handles worn smooth by human grips.

THE FURNITURE SECTION

The furniture section would make an antique collecter stark mad with envy. There are highboys, tremendous old four-posters, chairs that must have come over in the Mayflower, tables, bureaus, until one gets tired looking at them. The same thing can be said for the collection of table utensils, china-ware and whatever it was our fore-fthers used in eating their meals. There are even bath-tubs and one, black with age and shaped like a huge shoe, is said to be the one in which Charlotte Corday murdered Baignoire de Marat.

There are fifty sleighs of different designs, each to a different period of our history. There are music-boxes, which still grind out tunes favored in Civil War days. There are collections of shoes, bottles, pictures, school books, sleigh bells, hats, bicycles, Indian relics and lamps. The history of illumination may well be told by the latter, for it includes lamps carried by Roman soldiers in the days of the Vestal Virgins down to the first incandescent globes made by Thomas Edison.

Some day, Ford will place all these whispers of the past under a single roof and the museum may well take its place beside Niagara Falls as a mecca for Americans.

Best Speller

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

LONDON, O., Apr. 28.—Savants of Madison County, where spelling is a national pastime, are enthusiastic over, if a little puzzled by, the extraordinary skill demonstrated by Miss Anna Bell, now three times winner of the annual Madison County spelling contest. Apparently there is no word, in or out of the dictionary, that this freckled little girl cannot spell, instantly and without effort.

Anna is a junior in the Fairfield Township centralized high school. Her personality and temperament are normal in every way, except for her uncanny skill with words. She is an honor student and popular with her classmates, but when it comes to spelling bees, all competition is left at the post.

Miss Bell first displayed her gift two years ago. She was then fourteen, and a junior high school student. At the 1924 contest the list of words carefully prepared by expert educators as calculated to provide pitfalls for unwary entrants, was simple for Anna, who stood up in front of her audience and spelled each word correctly, almost before it had been pronounced by her interrogator.

When the official list of problems was exhausted, Anna had defeated every other contestant, and her score was 100 per cent. The puzzled pedagogues held a conference. A messenger was dispatched at full speed for a dictionary. The dictionary provided no example of the English language, however long, or however tricky, which Anna even hesitated over. She spelled troglodyte, ptarmigan, and interprotovertebral, just as simply as the average individual spells "fish."

The same thing happened last year, and now Anna has repeated her former triumphs in the 1927 contest. Madison County is seriously considerig a national spelling bee, to which the best spellers of the forty-eight states of the union would be invited. If such a contest could be promoted, Madison County is prepared to risk its last nickel on Anna's ability to outspell the nation, after which a petition to include spelling in the Olympic games would be a natural development.

Get rid of them safely. Here's a new sure way. K-R-O, a fine non-poisonous powder, kills 'em off in a hurry. Made from squill bulbs, the new safe way urged by government experts.

Safe for poultry and pets

Actual tests proved that it killed rats and mice every time but other animals and poultry were not injured by the largest doses. Think what that means to farmers and merchants.

Not a poison

Use K-R-O freely. Place it around your home, your barn, your granary or farmyard. Contains no arsenic, phosphorus or barium-carbonate. 75c at your druggist. Satisfaction guaranteed.

A Word With the Old Folks

Elderly People Are Learning Importance of Good Elimination.

IN the later years of life there is apt to be a slowing up of the bodily functions. Good elimination, however, is just as essential to the old as to the young. Many old folks have learned the value of Doan's Pills when a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys is required. Scanty or burning passages of kidney secretions are often signs of improper kidney function. In most every community are scores of users and endorsers who acclaim the merit of Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Whole Chesapeake Family Built to Rugged Health

L. M. McMasters, his wife and three children, all ill. Entire family used Tanlac and grew back to vigorous health. Give full credit to Tanlac for quick recovery

Mr. McMasters lives on Sims Creek Road, Chesapeake, Ohio. Of his recent trying experience he says: "For two years stomach and liver trouble had gradually run me down and when constipation developed that seemed the last straw needed to break me, and to make things worse all of my family were sick more or less all the time. My wife was subject to nervous attacks that kept us all awake at night. The children caught colds for no apparent reason and were confined to bed for several days at a time. None of us were getting the proper nourishment, and temporary relief would be followed by fresh attacks.

"We decided to give Tanlac a trial and it put us all on our feet. Our grocery bills are much higher now. We have no expense for medicines for we all eat heartily, and our food does us good. That was some time ago and we've all enjoyed the finest health since, eating and sleeping normally and getting full value out of life. All the credit belongs to Tanlac."

If overwork or neglect have left their mark on you, try Tanlac. It is nature's own body builder, made from herbs, roots and barks. Your druggist has it. Over 52 million bottles sold.

She was a helpless victim

No matter how hard she tried, she just kept on being irritable and unpleasant. And who wouldn't? She was always having splitting sinus headaches—a terrible penalty of catarrh.

Yet Hall's Catarrh Medicine will change all that. If you are a sufferer, it will bring relief to you, as it has to thousands of others.

Catarrhal deafness—inflamed sinuses—catarrhal headaches—catarrhal bad breath—yield to its power.

Ask your druggist. Price 85c. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

Masterful Power

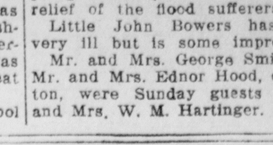

Over the top - - - - with plenty to spare

Hills that have been the traditional test for motordom's most powerful cars are topped by the Hudson Super-Six on a rising speedometer.

Alertness and immediate response to the throttle account for the way the New Hudson Super-Six takes advantage of every driving opportunity.

There is no motor labor. There is no sense of the mechanical. All feeling that there is a motor and complicated mechanism is absent.

And whether in city driving or in high sustained speed over country roads the action and comfort of your Hudson is the very luxury of motion.

Xenia Scouts will probably go to Dayton Saturday to witness the proceedings when Dayton Scouts fake a hurricane scene at Riverview Park as a means of demonstrating the ability of Scouts to be of instant service in the event of a real catastrophe. Illustrations of all forms of Scout craft will be conducted.

The start of the hurricane will be announced by a signal, set off by a fleet of bombing planes, and Scouts will be dispatched throughout the city to the park to mobilize.

Upon reaching the park, they will be assigned to administer first aid service to the "wounded" and transport patients to pup tents, where hospital service will be given the supposed injured.

FINE FOR CHILDREN!

Give them a good start in life, with happy smiles and healthy little bodies. Children need a mild corrective occasionally to regulate stomach and bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a safe vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. They tone up and regulate the eliminative tract. Not a nasty cathartic or a habit-forming medicine, but a safe pleasant remedy for constipation, sour stomach, torpid liver, bad breath, and similar disorders. Dr. Edwards, a widely known family physician of Ohio, prescribed these tablets for many years in his own practice. Children from six years up are greatly helped by them and like to take them. Recognized by their olive color, Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets overcome those irritable spells that many children are subject to, keep their bodies in active healthy condition, skin clear and eyes bright with the light of perfect health. 15c, 30c and 60c sizes.

"Too many of our earthly saints," said Eph Snow, "are willing to cast their burdens on the Lord instead of carrying them themselves."

WHO REMEMBERS

The "good old days" when nearly every young man carried a revolver or a pair of brass "knucks?"

IN OUR TOWN

IT'S A BAD RACE

The great moral to be drawn from our plight in China is that nobody ever should be a foreigner.

THE POINT OF VIEW

To grow poor,
Buy this year's car
On next year's money;
To get rich,
Keep last year's car
And save this year's money.

DO YOU KNOW THAT

Most husbands are pleased to buy new spring hats for their wives?

At least 90 per cent of all brides know how to cook and keep house?

Ninety-five per cent of all marriages "stay put?"

Men, who hold nearly all the pocketbooks containing real money, spend four times as much foolishly as women?

Most of the children who stand high in their classes are not failures afterward but usually are big successes?

More Americans than Frenchmen eat frogs?

Stories about American cities in which saloons run as openly as before prohibition are bunk, or else visitors to them are falsifiers?

The only difference between grandmother's love-making and that of today's flapper is that the former was called "spooning" and the latter's is called "necking?"

SHORT STORIES

"I don't dare smoke around the house," complained the flapper; "father is a smoke inspector."

"Where did John and Helen go on their wedding trip?"
"They don't know."

MINOR MUSINGS

The prohibition theory is that no man is stronger than his weakest drink.

Sylvia vividly remembered that doctor book. It had been one of the horrors of her childhood. Whenever she had had an ache or a pain, Aunt Agony had taken down the "doctor book" and then administered castor oil in large quantities.

"Now, Agony, don't start giving that child medicine," said Dr. Buzzard, eyeing the "doctor book" with a dislike and distrust. He had known Agony Starr for thirty years, and he knew her failings.

"Have you given him any castor oil?" demanded Aunt Agony, with a war-like look. She tossed her head so that all the little jet flowers on her hat danced wildly.

"No, and he doesn't need any, either!" Dr. Buzzard came back at her. "He needs just what he's getting—a good sleep."

Aunt Agony opened her black silk bag with a smart click and took out the bottle of castor oil she had just bought at an all-night drug store. She shook it in Dr. Buzzard's surprised face.

"I raised Sylvia on this!" she said grimly. "I raised her on it, and look at her! Look at her!"

The old doctor did look at Sylvia, then, and he winked, too. "Sylvia, I depend upon you to see that your aunt doesn't give the baby a drop of anything tonight. I think he'll be all right in the morning," he said. "Anyway, I'll drop around and see."

He picked up his bag and started away with a cheerful "Goodnight to you!"

At the door he bumped into Ranny, who was stupidly trying to find the key-hole.

As the doctor passed him, he straightened up and opened his mouth to speak to him.

But the doctor went straight down the stairs without so much as a look at him. He had had no earthly use for Randall Phelps since the night when Junior was born—the night when Ranny had not come home until dawn!

* * *

"What's th' matter? Baby sick?" Ranny asked, as he took off his coat in the tiny hallway and hung it up. His voice was thick and it seemed hard for him to talk clearly.

Sylvia wished that there was some way of getting him off to bed without letting Aunt Agony see him in this state.

But Aunt Agony was all primed for him, and the instant he set foot in the living room she fairly pounced upon him as a clever old cat might pounce upon a hapless mouse.

"Hah!" she snorted, "so you're here! 'Better late than never,' eh? Well, you're a fine one, aren't you?"

She looked him up and down with a blighting look. "A fine time you were having with that trollop hanging to your arm this afternoon while your wife was home nursing a sick baby! What do you mean by such actions, eh?"

Ranny looked at her and then lounged across the room for a cigaret from the mantel shelf. He struck a match to it lazily before he answered her.

"I don't know what you're talking about," he said then, without looking at her. "If you mean that I was with Miss Leopold this afternoon, I admit that I was with her. Sylvia and I had dinner with her downtown tonight, and you might tell your friend, Sarah Wilk, that her brother was along, too."

Aunt Agony's eyebrows almost vanished in her hair with surprise.

"Is that true, Sylvia?" she asked. She didn't take Ranny's word on anything.

Sylvia nodded.

"She's a great friend of Sylvia's," Ranny added, stretching the truth almost to the breaking point. But Sylvia let him tell his lie.

Suddenly she didn't care whether Ranny was in love with Elsie Leopold or not. She didn't care whether he told the truth to Aunt Agony or to anybody else!

Nothing mattered very much to her just now but the little baby that lay, breathing so loudly, in his tiny room—the little baby that was her flesh and Ranny's, her spirit and Ranny's.

"Oh, you don't think he's going to die?" she asked piteously of Aunt Agony, and threw herself on that narrow, virginal breast with a half-smothered sob.

But it was Ranny who answered her.

"Of course he's not going to die! Control yourself, Sylvia," he said, gruffly. "You're just nervous, that's all. Better come to bed."

He went there himself.

Presently Aunt Agony stretched her thin body on the davenport and dozed, too.

But Sylvia sat all night on the edge of the baby's small bed with one of his hot little hands in hers. Toward morning she fell asleep.

* * *

When she woke up it was light.

The baby was not so feverish as he had been, and he was in what Aunt Agony called "a beautiful sleep" when she tiptoed in to look at him.

"Your husband just left for the office," she added bitterly. "I suppose he didn't want to see me again this morning! Well, it doesn't hurt my feelings a bit to have him out of the house, not a bit!"

At nine o'clock Ranny telephoned. "I left my watch and a lot of important papers on my chiffonier," he told Sylvia. "Get a cab and bring 'em right down to the office, will you?"

Sylvia tore herself away from the baby and went. To leave the tiny thing was almost like leaving part of herself behind her in the house, he seemed so much a part of her. And his sick little voice said nothing but "Mother—Mother," over and over.

She found Ranny in his father's old office.

He looked very fine and important sitting behind the broad mahogany desk, when she went in. He was talking over the telephone, and he put one hand over the mouthpiece and whispered to her to sit down.

Sylvia sank into the chair beside his desk, and it was then that she noticed for the first time that a girl sat at another desk in the corner.

She looked up and grinned at Sylvia with teeth that were startlingly white in her brown face—the brown, gipsyish face of Elsie Leopold!

"Why, whatever are you doing here?" Sylvia found herself asking, before she knew that the words were out of her mouth.

For Elsie seemed very much at home, here in Ranny's office! Her hat and coat hung on the hook behind her, and there was a potted flower on her desk.

She laughed outright at Sylvia's question. "Now, looky here, don't you start to be jealous of me!" she said in her impudent, brazen way. "Your husband is simply letting me use this desk for an hour or so every day until I get my own shop, so don't misunderstand the thing!"

Sylvia gave her a long, still look from those deep eyes of hers. It was a look that made the girl at the desk feel guilty and common and cheap, all at once—a look that made her blush under her thick layers of make-up.

"No, I don't misunderstand anything," said Sylvia, turning away. "I think I understand some things, too well."

She laid Ranny's watch and papers on his desk. As she went through the door of his office he called to her to wait, but perhaps she didn't hear him, for she went straight on. The door closed slowly behind her and clicked shut.

CHAPTER XLV

OUTSIDE in the street, wet and cheerless with November rain, Sylvia's cab still waited for her.

"Take me home," she said to the driver as she got into it, "and hurry, please!"

She was in a fever to get back to the baby. Above the whirring of the traffic, she could hear his sick little wail. And his small face haunted her.

Oh, what difference did it make after all, if he had given Elsie Leopold deskroom in his office? What earthly difference did it make if they were there together from morning until night, making love to each other, no doubt?

It made no difference at all to Sylvia that morning, and for many mornings to come.

Ranny's faithlessness suddenly had lost its power to hurt her. Nothing had any power to hurt her, now, but the thought of the baby at home in his tiny, stuffy room, with its one window that opened on a dark air-shaft. She had no thought but to get back to that room just as fast as she could.

But halfway home, she saw something that made her lean forward and ask the driver to turn and take her back to Ranny's office.

That 'something" was nothing more or less than a bright colored advertisement on a signboard they happened to be passing.

It showed the picture of a healthy, rosy-cheeked baby in a red sweater-suit. The kind of baby that Ranny, Junior, should be—and was not.

Under the picture was the legend "Rent that home in the country, now, and keep the kiddies healthy." It was an ad for Ranny's own company—"Jamison Phelps & Son!"

Ten minutes later when Sylvia opened the door of Ranny's office and stepped inside, he glanced up at her in amazement. Then he shot Elsie Leopold a warning look that Sylvia didn't even see.

But Elsie jumped up, and hurried out of the office, leaving a strong taint of perfume in the air behind her.

When they were alone, Sylvia told Ranny what she had come back to tell him.

She told it to him in a voice that he hardly knew. A dull, heavy voice with all the tender little golden notes gone out of it.

"You people have some houses for rent out in the country. I saw them advertised," she said. "I want one of them right away, so that I can get into it on the first of December."

His eyes widened, then narrowed. "You're not leaving me?" he asked. "You're not going away by yourself?"

She shook her head. "Don't be silly," she said, "it's because of Junior that I want to get away. He can't stay in The Nest any more. He's going to die if he does—"

"Oh, nonsense, Sylvia!" Ranny broke in. "Thousands of healthy kids live in town and in flats, too."

"Not in rooms that open on an air-shaft," Sylvia shook her head, "and our baby isn't a healthy baby. He never schuld have lived in town at all. You get the house, that's all—I have plenty of money for the rent. You get the house!"

Then she was gone. Ranny heard one uncontrollable sob escape her lips as she shut the door and went out.

He picked up his desk telephone and asked his brother-in-law to come into his office for a minute. Thomas Boyle knew more about the business of the Phelps Company in one minute than Ranny would ever know!

"Thomas," he said to him, "Sylvia's got some fool idea in her head that she wants to live in the country now. Look at those houses of ours up on Sunnington Heights and see if you can find one about the size of your bungalow, will you? I'd do it myself but I have an important engagement."

What that important engagement was Thomas Boyle never knew, but it kept Ranny away from the office all day.

Elsie Leopold left shortly after he drove away in his Tanbe roadster. She did not come back, either.

* * *

Dr. Buzzard's shabby green car swung into Wing Street just ahead of the taxicab. Sylvia could just make out the blurred outlines of it through the rain that was coming down in bucketsful now.

As she paid the taxi driver she saw him emerge from it and go swiftly across the sidewalk to the apartment. He had said last night that he would drop in to see the baby this morning, but there was something about his haste that made Sylvia's heart leap with fear.

She rushed up the stairs behind him and reached the door of The Nest just as Aunt Agony opened it.

"The baby's worse," she said, looking from one to the other of them nervously. "He's like a live coal—he's so hot. And I can't make him open his eyes."

Sylvia turned to go into the little room off the air shaft, but Aunt Agony caught her in her thin arms. "No, no, don't go in there the way you are—all cold and wet," she said sharply, and pushed her down into a chair.

Then she helped her out of her damp coat and pulled off her little felt hat and shook it. "Poor child!" she murmured, as if to herself, and shook her head.

There came a knock on the outer door.

Aunt Agony opened it to the Lister twins, who had come for their weekly music lesson. She briskly sent them away and came back to stroke Sylvia's hair with her rough, capable hands while they waited for Dr. Buzzard to come out of the sickroom.

"Now, then, Sylvia," she said presently, "that's an awfully sick little baby in there, and you've got to make up your mind—"

Sylvia didn't wait to hear the rest of what she had to say. She wrenched herself out of Aunt Agony's arms and flew into her bedroom—hers and Ranny's. She sank down on the floor and gave way to the storm of tears that she had been holding back all morning.

She cried and cried, but her tears brought her no relief.

When Dr. Buzzard came to the door and tapped lightly on it, she raised a face swollen and reddened with her grief.

"Well?" she asked, and looked at him with hard, sullen eyes.

But the old doctor had not lived with sickness and death for thirty years for nothing. In that time he had learned things about the human heart that only doctors and nurses and ministers ever do learn about it. And so he knew that Sylvia's sullenness masked the pain and torment that were in her heart that morning.

He put out one of his hands and took hers in it. "My dear, the baby has a pretty heavy cold;" he told her the truth in his kindly way. "It's down in his chest. I've told Agony just what to do for him today, and I'll be around again about supper time."
